Battleship and Coach. Cannon, Bow and Arrow. The First That Flew. 100 Sample Stocks.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE sailed into Havana harbor on the battleship Texas, convoyed by six destroyers—their official job being to keep off submarines and torpedo boats. If it had been real war, the President would have gone in a submarine or a flying ship—never in a dangerous floating steel target. The expensive battleship would not have been sent out of its snug harbor and the destroyers "would have been busy dodging destruction from the air." Battleships are magnificently impressive, and as obsolete as the gilded six-horse coach in which King George rides to open Parliament.

SOME good news about government flying machines at last. We may eventually realize that the richest nation should develop the only defense really important—fighting airplanes and destructive submarines.

OUR government airships flew, non-stop, to Managua. And a real air fighting air unit is to "co-operate" with the battle fleet in the Pacific. Two airplane carriers, able to launch 100 airships each, will be part of the Pacific fleet. And the Navy says it is determined to "maintain supremacy of the air at sea."

THE only fighting at sea, henceforth, is to be the air. And to talk of airships "co-operating" with a battle fleet, is like talking of high-powered cannon co-operating with bows and arrows. If war came, the fliers would have to protect the battleships.

THIS news from Washington should sink into the national mind. At Panama an obsolete 6,000-ton ship was used for a target. A "preliminary bombardment" was ordered, six pursuit planes, dropping little 25-pound bombs, supposed to be of value only in bombing troops on the ground. A serious bombardment with heavier bombs was to follow. But when the light pursuit planes and light bombs had finished there was nothing left to bombard. The big ship was at the bottom. The light bombing was done on the theory that a big warship was being attacked in action. The little bombs were to drive the gun crews of the battleships away from their guns, including their anti-aircraft guns. Then the big bombers were to come, and finish the ship.

THIS enlightening experiment, one of the most important made by the Navy, indicates what 6,000-pound bombs of TNT will do to $60,000,000 battleships.

THE original Wright Brothers' air machine, first plane that ever carried a human being through the air under human control, is boxed up for shipment to England. It ought to stay here in the Smithsonian Institution.

If the richest country in the world is too poor to buy it, Henry Ford might add it to his collection of transportation antiques, suspending it above the original Ford car—which, by the way, you could not buy from Ford for ten million dollars. Try it.

THE Smithsonian Institution should have Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane also, and the government should pay Lindbergh enough for it to make him independent for life. If Lindbergh got $1,000,000 for that machine, he would get less than 1 per cent of what this country owes him. The "Spirit of St. Louis," despite all Lindbergh's good care, must be getting old and worn, and a brand new machine, best and safest the world can produce, should take its place.

ADVICE often given here "don't sell anything in this country short," is based on the fact that good American properties are cheap, and going up. Frazier, Jelke & Co., list 100 American stocks whose total value was over seventeen billions at the end of 1926 and more than twenty-three billions at the end of 1927, a gain of five billion eight hundred and eighteen million dollars in one year. Does that look like a "good short sale?"

THIS year the country's electric light and power companies alone will spend nine hundred millions on new construction. They evidently expect more business, although great cement plants, utilizing for power heat that has hitherto gone up the chimneys, will reduce electric power consumption by one-half, or more. Don't gamble. Above all, don't sell short.

A WASHINGTON correspondent says Secretary Mellon will support Herbert Hoover for President next year. Millions of voters, in both parties, hope that Mr. Mellon himself will be nominated, and feel sure that he would be elected by a majority overwhelming. Mr. Mellon's endorsement of Mr. Hoover would be very powerful, would mean many votes in the convention, and many votes at the polls.

LA NACION newspaper, said to be owned by the government of Chile, carries on what John Clayton, well-known correspondent, calls a "campaign of filthy, vicious abuse of the United States." Clayton suggests a serious clash between Chile and this country. It takes two to make a serious clash, especially when one is overwhelmingly more powerful than the other.

VICIOUS abuse never hurts, when it is false. George Washington was viciously abused, accused of planning to make himself king of America. That did not hurt him or his reputation. It is what you are, what you do and what your intentions are that count, not what others say about you. Let La Nacion talk and abuse and let us do our best to build up this North and South American continent, especially our part of it. And let us keep ready, always, in case words should change to action.

GUARD KILLER FROM MOB

By International News Service.

IONIA, Mich., Jan. 17.—Adolph Hotelling, gentle-mannered church elder and self-confessed murderer of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider, calmly discussed plans to fight conviction today after arising from a sound sleep in Ionia prison and eating a hearty breakfast with apparent relish.

His jailers declared he appeared as unconcerned as if he were in the pew of the church where he presided only last Sunday at communion services.

Hotelling was brought here from Flint to escape mob vengeance.

Hotelling twice attempted suicide during the night, but with the break of dawn he appeared quite composed.

NIGHT OF TERROR

He was the only person directly concerned with the case who passed a night of calm sleep. It was a night of terror, of mobs, of hurried flights with Hotelling from Flint to Lansing and thence to Ionia, where the murderer was lodged behind the prison walls.

Hotelling, elder of the Church of Christ at Owosso and the sort of man pointed out as a model for the youth of the town, had heard the mob demanding his life at Flint. He flinched and begged to be removed to a more secure prison.

Just a short time before, he had faced the accusing, careful inspection of Archie Bacon, Mt. Morris farmer who helped the slayer extricate his car from the mud.

"It's him," Bacon shouted.

Then Hotelling made and signed two revolting confessions, in which he told how he lured Dorothy into his automobile, drove to a desolate spot near the Bacon farm and there criminally attacked and killed her.

5 Big Fires Threaten Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Five extra alarm fires, interspersed with several minor ones and a few false ones, threw the national capital into a state of turmoil last night and early today and led the police to believe firebugs were at work in the national capital.

The blazes, the first of which began shortly before midnight, continued until after 9 o'clock this morning, bringing apparatus from many nearby Virginia and Maryland cities and towns to aid an exhausted Washington crew and starting a wide search for suspects believed to have deliberately set fire to the places and to have turned in false alarms to divert the fire fighters.

The first man taken in the hunt was a temporary psychopathic patient at Walter Reed Hospital. He gave the name of John Jacob Fisher, 29. On his person was found a fire badge of the town of Fallsburgh, New York. He was held for investigation.

Fisher was arrested after three men said they had observed him acting suspiciously at a fire box in the Eckington section, where a grain elevator was burned at Fourth and Q street, Northwest.

Other fires were at the Woolworth store on Pennsylvania avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, a number of produce stores near Center Market a little more than a block away. A grain store on H street, Northwest, near the Union Station viaduct, and a lumber yard at Fourteenth and W streets in the Northwest residential district.

Church Elder-Fiend Never Drank, Smoked

By International News Service

OWOSSO, Mich., Jan. 17.—Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of little Dorothy Schneider, is the father of four daughters and a son, the eldest 25, the youngest 3. Hotelling is 46 years old. His wife is 42.

HE NEVER SMOKED.

HE NEVER DRANK INTOXICANTS.

HE NEVER SWORE.

A regular attendant at church, he officiated in a communion service last Sunday in the Church of Christ.

THAT EVENING HE WAS ELECTED AN ELDER IN THE CHURCH.

THIS WAS ON THE THIRD DAY AFTER THE MURDER.

He is a carpenter.

Elder's Confession Of Killing Child

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The text of Adolph Hotelling's confession to police of the slaying of Dorothy Schneider follows in part:

Question by C. J. Scarvada, chief of police, Flint, Mich.:

Q. How did you happen to go to Mt. Morris?

A. Went different places looking for work. This was the second or third time I was there.

Q. Where did you see this little girl? You were going out to Mt. Morris when you saw her?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you say to her?

A. Asked her if she wanted to ride.

Q. What did she say?

A. She wanted to know where I was going.

Q. Did you coax the girl in the car?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you intend to take her?

A. Intended to take her to her home.

Q. And then you got out of the car?

A. I told her to get out and I would take her home.

Q. What did you do to her when you got to the bank of the river?

A. It seemed that she was going to tell her mother or her folks something.

Q. You say when you got her there by the creek she said she would tell her mother. What did you do; tell me how you cut her?

A. I do not know if I can exactly.

Q. Tell us the best you can; tell us what you did there.

A. Seems to me that I remember telling her that I was going to kill her.

Q. You said that you would kill her?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you kill her?

A. Killed her with a knife.

Q. How many times did you stab her?

A. I think just once is all I stabbed her.

Q. After you did that what did you do with the body?

A. Throwed her in the creek.

Q. What did you do with the clothes?

A. Threw them into the creek, too.

Q. What did you do this for?

A. I don't know what I did it for.

Q. Have you ever complained of severe headaches?

A. Had lots of headaches; the doctor has to give me hypodermics.

Q. Are you addicted to the use of hypodermics?

A. Only what the doctor gave me. I had severe headaches and also had stomach trouble.

Q. Did you read the papers about the crime in Los Angeles?

A. I thought it was something terrible. I could not sleep that night. It has been on my mind, and I could not get rid of it. I think about, think about, think about it.

Q. Have you been right in the house since you committed this crime?

A. Had the car out one day.

Q. Have you done anything to change the color of this car since you committed this crime?

A. Painted it; painted it black.

Q. Had you at any time thought that you would give yourself up, after committing this crime?

A. Yes, sir; I thought that I would.

Q. Did you go to church on Sunday?

A. Twice—in the forenoon and in the evening.

Q. What did you do after you got into church and went through your regular routine as an elder? What was on your mind?

A. Just my Christian religion.

Q. Did you have any thought of this little girl?

A. No, sir.

VOTE 1 DAY STAY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Final action on the Smith election case was delayed by the Senate until tomorrow on motion of Senator Curtis (R.), of Kansas, majority floor leader, when debate on the Reed committee's report was started on the floor this afternoon. The Reed report demanded the immediate and final exclusion of Senator-elect Frank L. Smith (R.), of Illinois, on slush-fund charges.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, urged that the final vote be delayed until he and other interested senators had time to study the report in full.

"The victim is at the door," Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire, responded, "and the guillotine is greased, so why delay the execution?"

Senator Reed argued that full opportunity should be given for debate.

Curtis' motion was then adopted on a viva voce vote.

In a final report, the committee submitted a resolution of expulsion against Smith and urged its immediate adoption. This verdict against Smith was reached, the committee reported, because of the expenditure of $458,782 in his behalf in the Illinois senatorial campaign of 1926, and because $203,000 was contributed to his campaign by the "officers of large public service institutions doing business in Illinois."

The report was filed by Senator James A. Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman.

Girl Uses Knife on Annoyer

"He got too familiar with me," 12-year-old Lillian Lewis, of 222 Jackson street, told Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today in explaining why she cut Russell Elright, 21, of the same address, on both arms with a butcher knife last night.

Elright was held under $500 bond as a witness for the girl's hearing, which will be held in Juvenile Court.

Shoots Into Chest, 'Twas Just Test for Steel Vest

A man walked into county detective headquarters this morning and shot himself in the chest with a .44 caliber revolver. Then he used a .38 caliber revolver. After firing several more shots at himself from both revolvers he walked out.

All this occurred in front of 26 members of George W. Murren's county detective force.

The man was demonstrating a bullet-proof vest.

ANNA POPOWITCH

Accusing Raymond Singer with attacking her, under threat of death, in the Sewickley Y. M. C. A., Anna has added another woe to her mother, whose son, Mike Popowitch, is being held in connection with the murder of Nick Anderson at Fair Oaks. Fear of Singer kept the girl silent regarding the attack, which took place New Year's eve, until the man threatened her whole family and his arrest followed, the girl told police.

JAILED AS GIRL TELLS

That she was forced under threat of death in a darkened corridor of the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. to submit to an attack by Raymond Singer, 25, of Edgeworth, is the story told by Anna Popowitch, 17, of Fair Oaks, police say, in causing Singer's arrest. Anna is a sister of Mike Popowitch, who, with Olga Pawliskak, is in the Allegheny county jail awaiting trial for the murder of Nick Anderson at Fair Oaks, Sunday, January 8.

The girl was induced to go to the Y. M. C. A. under Singer's pretense that there was to be a reception there, she told police. Arriving she found the building dark. In a corner of a hallway, she says, Singer drew a revolver and threatened to shoot her unless she submitted to him.

The attack occurred on New Year's eve, according to the girl's story. Later, when Singer is alleged to have threatened her and other members of the family if they made information against him, Anna related her experience to Justice of the Peace John A. Weber of Leet township, and he ordered the man's arrest.

Constable Michael O'Connor was given a warrant for the apprehension of Singer, and when the officer attempted to make the arrest, he says, Singer reached for a revolver and battled with the officers.

Added to the girl's charge is one of carrying concealed weapons. Singer is now in the Allegheny county jail.

COOLIDGE LEAVES CUBA, REAL WORK BEGINS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—The Sixth Pan-American Conference, which is fraught with enormous possibility for good or evil so far as relations with Latin America are concerned, got down to serious business today. The amenities, the toasts, the official courtesies are ended.

For two days temperamental Havana and, in fact, all Latin-America has rendered homage to the President of the United States in a manner without precedent or parallel in international relations. President Coolidge has been feted and dined and acclaimed such as no man ever was in the queen city of the Caribbean country. Latin-

AUSTRALIAN TRIES AGAIN FOR FLIGHT RECORD

MAKE 2ND EFFORT TO SET ENDURANCE MARK

By International News Service.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian ace, and Lieut. George R. Pond, Naval Reserve flier, took off in their tri-motored Fokker monoplane at 8:09 a. m. here today on another attempt to shatter the world's record for sustained flight.

The plane carried 1,516 gallons of gasoline and, altogether with fuel, crew and provisions weighed 15,880 pounds.

Kingsford-Smith and Pond in their aerial Argosy recently flew for more than 40 hours when they were forced down by exhaustion of fuel. Subsequently their gasoline storage space was increased by 125 gallons.

The plane is propelled by three Wright Whirlwind motors. It was formerly the flagship of the Wilkins Arctic expedition.

CLUE TO TRAGEDIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(A.P.)—Ice-encrusted wings, which frustrated a third attempt by Clarence D. Chamberlin to establish a flight duration record are regarded by him as an explanation for the disappearance of many airplanes in trans-Atlantic flight attempts.

Chamberlin, forced out of the air three and one-half hours after he and a companion, Roger Q. Williams, started another attempt at the duration record, yesterday brought his plane to the ground burdened with 700 pounds of ice, formed in 20 minutes.

"What would have happened in another 20 minutes more I don't know," he said. "Our experience undoubtedly gives a clue to the disappearance of a good many of the people in trans-Atlantic flights last year.

"To fly on with ice forming steadily or to dump the gas would be fatal either way, probably. If they did not dump their load, but tried to keep on, they were bound to reach the point where the maximum number of revolutions of their motors would be insufficient to keep the heavily weighted planes aloft."

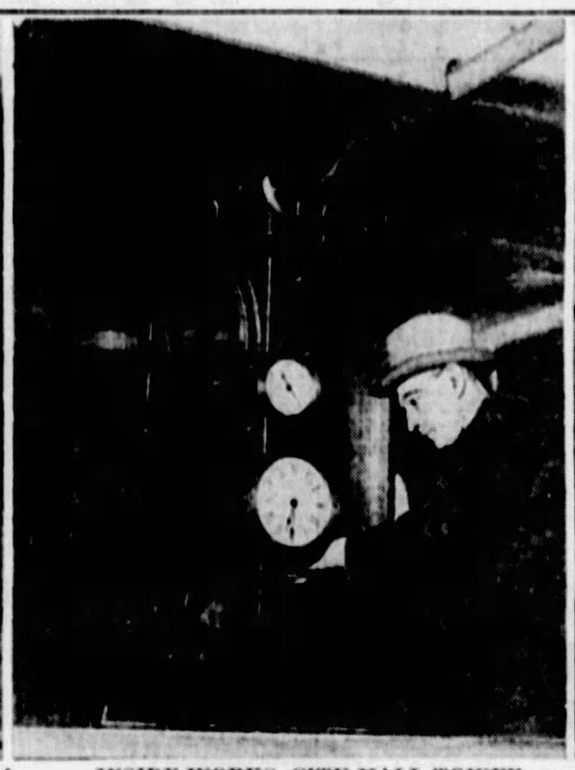
OLD CITY HALL CLOCK -:- LANDMARK -:- OF YESTERDAY PASSES

OLD CLOCK'S FAREWELL HANDSHAKE

On the narrow stone ledge high above the pavement of Smithfield street, Mary O'Hara defies death in paying a final tribute to the famous clock on Old City Hall, veteran of 50 eventful years in the city's service. The clock will run no more and doubtful is its fate.



INSIDE WORKS, CITY HALL TOWER

County Electrician Jesse W. Antill worked in vain to start the old timepiece which told the time of day in Pittsburgh from 1872 until a few years ago when the mayor and city officials forsook City Hall and established their headquarters in the new City-County Building.

THIS CLOCK HAS HOUSE OF ITS OWN

The works of Old City Hall tower clock are sheltered from dust, changing temperatures and bats by a house built around them inside the spooky tower room. It is regulated by a small pilot clock, the dials of which are visible here.

COOLIDGES LEAVE CUBA

READY FOR FIGHTING

But that part of the sixth conference of Pan-American states ended today when President Coolidge stepped aboard the U. S. cruiser Memphis at 7:45 o'clock today on the return trip to Washington.

From now on, as one delegate phrased it, "the fightin' begins."

That there will be plenty of conflicting opinion in this sixth conference is generally anticipated by the 90-odd delegates. The American military occupation of Nicaragua, the effort of some of the Latin-American states to make political questions a part of the program, and finally the growing national consciousness of these same Latin-American states, all are expected to provide the fuel for the fire.

It is to quench, or at least to control that fire that the United States government has sent to Havana the most distinguished degelation that has ever represented the country in Latin-American conference. It is headed by Charles Evans Hughes and it includes Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, who managed a marvelous betterment of relations between the Calles government in Mexico and the Coolidge administration in Washington.

It includes, too, although unofficially, Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist, who has become a sort of adjunct of the State Department since his missionary work in Mexico City. Rogers has dropped into Havana unofficially and unexplained, but he has been warmly greeted by the American delegates. Later on the American delegation will be supplemented by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the youthful American ambassador of goodwill to the entire world.

Against such a background, the heads of the 21 delegations met today to decide the future of the congress. Of necessity most of the work must be done in committees, and it is in these committees that the trouble—if any—will eventuate.

URGE OPEN DIPLOMACY

Some of the delegates from some of the countries represented in Havana want the committee meetings in the open. Mexico and Hayti and Salvador are understood to have prepared various resolutions defining what constitutes "intervention." These resolutions would condemn, by inference, such episodes as the present activity of the United States Marines in Nicaragua. The sponsors of these resolutions want the fighting and the argument to be in the open and are talking of Woodrow Wilson's famous phrase, "Open covenants openly arrived at."

The American delegation intends to stand upon the historic ground that a Pan-American Congress is not a body for the discussion of political subjects, and endeavors to keep the discussion within the traditional bounds of non-controversial subjects, such as commercial relations, exchanges of professors, the betterment of communication and the cultural advancement of Latin-American states.

U. S. WANTS SECRECY

The American delegates feel that even these subjects should be discussed behind closed doors, as usual, and plenary sessions held only when a decision has been reached which can be communicated to a waiting world through the medium of an open meeting. There is every indication that the policy favored by the Washington delegation will win and that the sixth conference of American states will follow the course of its predecessors—all controversies threshed out in private and all agreements publicly broadcast.

It is conceded, however, that this conference has got away to an auspicious start because of the unprecedented visit of Mr. Coolidge. For the first time in history an American President has come into the Caribbean country and assured the somewhat suspicious states of Latin-America that the United States wants nothing from them except friendship and cordial relations. Other presidents have said as much, but Mr. Coolidge is the first to ever make the pronouncement in the capital of a Latin-American country.

That the Latin-Americans appreciate this has been demonstrated in countless ways during the hectic 36 hours' visit of the North American president. It has been demonstrated by the tremendous crowds that have attended his every public appearance, by the showers of roses that have rained on him from the balconies of the old city, and by the cordiality of Latin-American officialdom in general. The Coolidges have created what the diplomats call "an atmosphere."

Something of this was seen in President Machado's brief speech at the great state banquet to President Coolidge last night when he said, addressing the chief delegates to the congress:

"Under singular and happy auguries you are about to initiate your labors. Gentlemen delegates, perhaps you will not, this time, reach your goal; however, we shall be drawn closer to one another, for we preserve our faith in the principles and the idea that Providence destined our hemisphere to be the new and mammoth temple erected to democracy, justice and concord."

WOMEN VOTERS URGE AUDIT BE INDEPENDENT

The Allegheny County League of Women Voters, through Mrs. J. O. Miller, today urged the County Commissioners to see that the general audit of county fiscal affairs be a strictly independent one and free from any connection with the County Controller's office.

"Unless the audit is absolutely independent, it will be just a political gesture," Mrs. Miller in her letter told the commissioners.

The league also asked that fixing of the cost of the audit be done by the board of County Commissioners, and not by them acting as the county salary board.

The commissioners yesterday authorized the expenditure of $50,000 for the audit. They instructed County Controller Robert G. Woodside to include this amount in his budget for 1928.

FREE POLICE IN DEATH

Five patrolmen who participated in the gun battle with Frank Redshaw, 46, 3425 Butler street, whose bullet-riddled body slumped down behind a chimney on the roof of his next door neighbor before the battle ended on Christmas eve, were exonerated by a coroner's jury today.

Without attempting to determine which of the five patrolmen actually killed Redshaw, the jury found the shooting was justifiable and in self-defense in the performance of duty.

Redshaw, released from the workhouse December 23, on Christmas eve shot his wife. One of the couple's three children summoned the police. Redshaw fled to the roof of his home then to the house adjoining and began blazing away at the police.

The policemen exonerated are Harry E. Schunk, Thomas C. Mulvihill, Raymond Adams, Sherman Hickenbottom and Andrew J. White.

CARNEGIE BANK VICTOR IN SUIT

A verdict for $23,000 was returned in Common Pleas Court today in favor of the Carnegie National Bank in its suit against the Chartiers Cemetery Company to recover $20,000 with interest on a demand note. As the cemetery company did not defend the suit, Attorney James H. Duff representing the bank, asked a verdict for the plaintiff and Judge James H. Gray so instructed the jury.

"Failure" Commits Suicide

Confessing himself a "financial no-account" in a farewell note, Irving M. Snow, 30, clerk, last night committed suicide in the rooming house of C. F. France, 6028 St. Marie street. He shot himself in the right temple.

The note read:

"I am a financial no account. This is the way to quit it. God bless everybody—sister, Mrs. C. Agnes, McClure avenue, Oakland, Cal."

On the reverse side of the note was "Bye-bye, old Pal," and signed "Irving." Another note read:

"Betty dear—Goodby, dear pal—Irving."

Snow evidently had shot himself early last evening. When he failed to appear today, the rooming house proprietor looked over the transom and saw Snow's body on the floor. A revolver lay nearby.

Cards in Snow's pocket indicated that he was a member of the Thirty-seventh Division, A. E. F.; Observatory Post, American Legion; Connellsville B. P. O. E., Knights of Pythias, Masons and the Young Men's Republican Tariff Club.

Gas Fumes Kill Still Owner

Carbon monoxide fumes which he inhaled while tending a still in his home last night caused the death of Samuel Thomas, of 1017 Bedford avenue, according to a report made to the coroner's office today. Thomas' wife told a deputy coroner her husband collapsed and died a short time after he had returned to the first floor from tending a 100-gallon still in the attic of his home. Police were notified, and they raided the house and seized the still.

"ARTISTIC" YEGGS ROB 2 STORES

Two artistic store-robbing jobs were reported to police today. From the method used, police believe the same gang responsible for both.

The robbers revealed their adeptness by avoiding smashing the glass panels in the store doors. Instead they carefully removed the moulding holding the panels in place, lifted out the glass and set it to one side where it would not be broken.

Philip Nathenson, one of the proprietors of the Highview Pharmacy, 936 Highview street, found the glass panel beside the door when he appeared to open for business today. Inspection revealed that $50 in cash and $35 worth of cigars and candy had been stolen. A metal cabinet was opened and papers scattered.

The Baier & Fleming drug store, 1934 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, was entered in the same manner and robbed of $27 in cash, $20 worth of fountain pens and a few boxes of cigarets.

FORMER MONACA MAN DIES IN YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 17.—O. S. Merriman, 55, prominent insurance agent, formerly of Monaca, Pa., died yesterday from complications. He was active in Masonic circles.

HER LOVE SHUNNED

MRS. JANE R. M'KNIGHT

Grieved, she said, because her husband, Samuel A. McKnight, radio merchant, had turned to "another woman," Mrs. Jane R. McKnight, 1121 Benton avenue, is reported to have taken poison in their Bellevue home. Her husband characterized her action as an attempt to scare him, according to testimony given in her divorce action. Her love, she said, was unrequited after nine years of married life.

WIFE SUES MOTHER OF HUSBAND

Mrs. Ella D. Vaughan of 7100 McClure avenue, Swissvale, was named defendant in a $100,000 damage suit filed yesterday in the United States District Court in behalf of Mrs. May Reynolds of Phoenix, Ariz., who charges Mrs. Vaughan with alienating the affections of her husband, Raymond Reynolds, who, the plaintiff says, has instituted a suit for divorce.

Mrs. Vaughan is a niece of the late Henry Deniston, retired farmer, who in 1921 was named defendant in a $500,000 heart balm suit by Nettie Richardson, a hotel cashier. Later, when relatives brought Deniston into court to have a guardian appointed for him, Mrs. Vaughan testified in his behalf and later became his housekeeper. She was a beneficiary in Deniston's will.

The bill of complaint sets forth that Mrs. Vaughan characterized Mrs. Reynolds as a "rip" and that she threatened to disinherit the plaintiff's husband if he continued to live with her.

Reynolds is a son of Mrs. Vaughan by a former marriage.

Mrs. Vaughan denied today that she had interfered with the married life of her son. Her statement follows:

"My son, Raymond, left Pittsburgh several years ago to go to California. Having no income at that time I was forced to go to work. He wrote to me in 1924 saying that he was married to a girl from Nebraska. They made their home in Phoenix, Ariz., where Raymond was a lieutenant in the fire department.

"I went to see them a year ago last November. I bought my son an expensive car and his wife a watch. They were building a home, and I gave them $1,000 to help them pay for it.

"Owing to the cool treatment I received from Mrs. Reynolds, I returned home, and have not seen the woman since that time. My son wanted to return home with me, but I refused to permit him.

"Last April my son visited me unexpectedly. He was injured here in an accident and was forced to stay here longer than he intended.

"I have received several letters from Mrs. Reynolds, in which she asked for money to pay bills. I

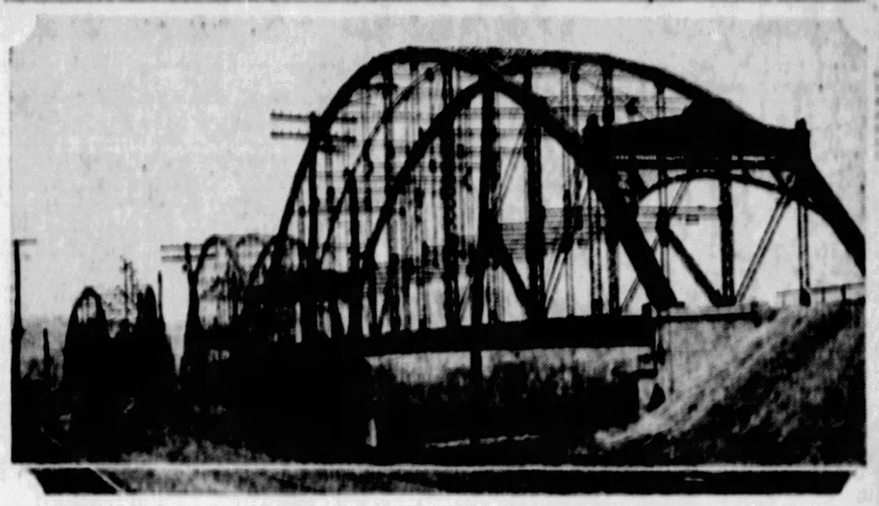
SIXTH ST. BRIDGE IN NEW LOCATION



FLOATED SAFELY DOWN RIVERS TO CORAOPOLIS

The old Sixth street bridge, floated down the Allegheny and Ohio rivers to the back channel at Coraopolis, has been placed in position and before long will replace the rickety old structure at the end of Neville Island. The bridge has been set up on higher piers than the old span, which necessitates sloping ramps on both sides of the river. Both bridges can be seen in the photograph, with the former Sixth street structure in the foreground.

MELLON ADDRESSES REPUBLICAN WOMEN

BETTER HALVES OF G. O. P. MEET IN NEW YORK

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon was one of the principal speakers at the Women's National Republican club's seventh annual anniversary luncheon held in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Saturday. Photograph shows Mrs. Frances A. Winslow, chairman, William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, Secretary Mellon and Charles D. Willes and Mrs. Charles Sabin.

SHOW GIRLS REHEARSE -:- FOR MINERS' BENEFIT -:- THURSDAY NIGHT

LITTLE HELPERS

"Sure, we'll help all we can," Vida Manuel declared as she paused in pic-a-backing Ruth Hartman about the stage of the Nixon Theater, where they are appearing in "One Sunny Day."

BLUES CHASERS

These five girls from "One Sunny Day," too, will appear in the midnight benefit show to be held at the Davis Thursday. Proceeds will go to the needy miners' families of the Pittsburgh district. Theater men are covering all incidental expenses and the entertainers are contributing their services.

JEANETTE M'DONALD

Jeanette McDonald, star of "One Sunny Day," is another who will appear in the benefit, which is being arranged by the Theater Managers' Association of Pittsburgh.

ROSALIND RUBY — LOUISE BEST — MARINE YACOPI

Three of the attractive young women from the Davis Theater bill discuss the benefit. Louise Best, accompanist of Rosalind Ruby, is laying plans with Senorita Marie Yacopi, dancer with the Yacopi troupe of Spanish acrobats, for the part the actors and actresses appearing this week at the Davis will take in the midnight show. Theatrical folk from 13 theaters will appear on the benefit bill, promising to make it one of the largest—and best—performances Pittsburghers have ever seen.

ORDER 15 CARS FOR WORK HERE

Fifteen new interurban trolley cars for service on the Washington-Pittsburgh route have been ordered from the St. Louis Car Company by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and they will be delivered here sometime in May, it was announced yesterday. K. W. McPherson, construction superintendent of the local company left last night to inspect the cars.

The new trolleys are longer than the present car used and they will contain upholstered individual seats, resembling those of parlor cars. The cars will be painted gray with red trimmings.

BOY GANGSTERS LOOT MOVIE

A gang of boy robbers caused $200 damage early today by smashing the ticket booth of the State Motion Picture Theater, Natrona, to obtain $42 in cash. Two of the youths, John Wiesneski, 13, and Edward Jastzrak, 15, both of Natrona, were found hiding in the theater, police say, after the robbery, evidently in search of further loot. Four other boys are being sought.

STATE ASKS HER LIFE

MRS. IMOGENE KELLOG

Because she helped her husband's attempted escape from Ohio State Prison, Mrs. Kellog faces trial for murder. She's the first woman ever to face such a charge in Perry county, Ohio. A guard was killed in her husband's attempt to escape, and the state claims Mrs. Kellog is, therefore, an accomplice to murder.

ELDER CONFESSES OTHER ATTACKS

By A. F. MUNRO,
International News Service Special Correspondent.

OWOSSO, Mich., Jan. 17.—Dawn came today to shed no ray of light in the home of "the man who was so kind he never scolded his children."

The darkness of despair filled the hearts of the family of Adolph Hotelling, the Owosso carpenter and church elder, who confessed slaying 5-year-old, blue-eyed and flaxen-haired Dorothy Schneider.

Through the long night Mrs. Myrtle Hotelling and her five children sat stunned by the tragedy that had overtaken them in the afternoon; that the trusted, honored, beloved father and husband had, with fiendish hands, wiped out the life of the little Mt. Morris kindergarten girl.

"If he is guilty, he should be punished. The world would be better off if he were dead. He will only grieve himself to death anyway," said Mrs. Hotelling.

State police, who went to the Hotelling home last night, told James Robertson, brother of Mrs. Hotelling, that Hotelling had confessed not only the killing of the Schneider girl, but of two other attacks.

One of the confessed attacks was on a girl who was lured to Oak Hill Cemetery, here, two years ago; another of a child living at Elsie, near here, who was lured away in his car.

The confession clears up two crimes that have baffled Owosso police and may clear the way, police believe, to the solving of several other fiendish acts, one the exhuming and desecration of a girl's body in Flint, several years ago.

"A kinder, better man I had never known," said Robertson, the brother-in-law. "He never smoked, drank, swore or was given to anger. He must be insane."

TIP-OFF FOILS RAIDS, CLAIM

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 17.—A tip-off to bootleggers arrived two days ahead of the prohibition flying squadron from Pittsburgh, with the result that agents found little liquor and made only three arrests. Harry Little, Sr., Charles Scarlett and John C. Lindsey, who conduct soft drink establishments were released in $500 bail each after being arraigned before a United States commissioner.

DEATH MAY END JOYRIDE

MARIAN YOUNKIN

Disobeying her mother's admonition to remain home, Marian Younkin, 17, of 1274 Ridge avenue, North Side, is in the Presbyterian Hospital battling for life, after an auto, in which she is said to have been joy-riding with John C. Lawrence, 38, of 411 Taylor avenue, was wrecked in a North Side street. Lawrence was seriously hurt and is under arrest.

STATUE BROKEN SUE CARRIER

Paul Manship, New York sculptor, and the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh entered suit in Common Pleas Court in an assumpsit against the American Railways Express Company. The plaintiffs allege that January 16, 1928, the sculptor shipped a marble statue "Europa" from New York City to Pittsburgh, and that the base of the statue was cracked in transit, damaging it to the extent of $2,500. The statue, which was to be exhibited at the Carnegie Institute, was cut from a solid block of marble, 28 inches long, 15 inches wide, with a two and one-half inch marble base, mounted on a metal base. According to Attorney Harry Ravich, who brought the suit, art experts say the amount of damages asked for is very reasonable.

HOLD 2 FOR U.S. COURT IN DRUG PEDDLING CHARGE

Joseph Murphy and Edward Moore, arrested Saturday on the North Side by Government Narcotic Agents W. T. Duffy and Joseph Colebaugh and City Detective Frank Ferris, were held for trial in the Federal District Court by the United States commissioner on a charge of violating the Harrison narcotic act. The officers said they found 150 grains of morphine in possession of Moore and 10 grains on Murphy. Bond for the latter was set at $1,500 and for Moore, $2,000.

DENY SALE OF HOTELS HERE

NEGOTIATIONS ADMITTED UNDER WAY

The William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels remain unsold, according to Grant McCargo, president of the Pittsburgh Hotels Company, although he admits that conferences and inspections are being carried on at the present time with Eugene C. Eppley of Omaha, large independent hotel operator, and a number of western financiers.

The offer of the western delegation for the hotels is said to be somewhat short of the price which the present owners had placed upon them. Several years ago the report was prevalent that large eastern interests made an offer for the hotels. The difference between the offer and the asking price in that case was said to be $1,000,000, and the deal was not completed. Whether negotiations are more successful in the present instance remains to be seen.

Mr. McCargo says that whether the holdings of the local company are sold or not, the business advantages will be about equal. He did not divulge the price at which the hotels are held, but admitted that the offer was quite a distance from meeting it.

PITTSBURGH FIRST U. S. CITY TO HEAR BAX WORK

Pittsburgh will be the first American city to hear a performance of the quintet for piano and strings by Arnold Bax, British composer, when the Yost String Quartet plays at the Hotel Schenley ballroom on Saturday evening, January 28. Pasquale Tallarico, pianist, of the Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore, will be the guest artist.

Arnold Bax has written a great number of works. He resides in London. The music of Bax is modern without being extreme.

VOTE MACHINE PLEA MADE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—Recommendation for more than a dozen additions to or revisions of Pennsylvania election laws were placed before the State Election Law Commission today.

The commission, appointed by Gov. Fisher to prepare suggestions for election law changes to the 1929 Legislature, held its first public hearing today. The hearing is the forerunner of later hearings to be held in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Virtually all the election law recommendations presented to the special legislative session of 1928, without passage, were urged upon the commission today for enactment next year.

Vance C. McCormick made 11 separate recommendations, one including the program submitted to the 1928 special session by the commission of 76 formed by former Gov. Pinchot after the Brumbaugh election irregularities in Philadelphia in 1925. McCormick, a member of the drafting sub-committee of the Pinchot commission, spoke today as a member of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Elections Association.

McCormick placed greatest stress on the voting machine amendment to the constitution, which voters will be asked to ratify in November; on the need for a more stringent corrupt practices act limiting campaign expenditures, and on additional restrictions to assistance to voters in marking ballots.

"I strongly favor a corrupt practices act which limits the amount of campaign expenditures based on the number of voters, much after the English system and in harmony with the Committee of 76," McCormick said. "Whatever money is contributed should be spent through one individual. Correction of such practices in Pennsylvania is very imperative. Recent practices have created a national scandal and call for drastic action by the Legislature."

A corrupt practices act similar to the one McCormick recommends had been among the election law recommendations of Gov. Fisher to the 1927 Legislature. It had recommended a limit of expenditures equal to 10 cents per voter for the largest vote cast for a candidate of the party in the preceding election. Controversy on this bill led to the compromise resulting creation of the present commission.

Gov. Fisher's bill restricting aid to voters, passed at the last Legislature, is good, McCormick said, but should be changed to make it more drastic.

Speaking of the need of voting machines, he declared:

"The official count of votes, as now conducted by county commissioners and the courts is largely a farce.

"At least the general election count should be made like that of the primary and ballot stubs, voters' check lists, unused ballots, lists of voters and other records checked against each other. And it should be mandatory on county officials, when irregularities are found, to transmit the information to the district attorney for investigation and prosecution."

McCormick also recommended changes to permit ballot boxes to be opened upon petition of five residents of any part of the county; to compel voters to sign their names on the check list as a safeguard against "phantoms;" to compel the use of a ballot with a number perforated corner for identification by the election board to end use of the "chain ballot;" to provide permanent registration to enlarge the list of qualified voters and permit of more time for investigation for padded registrations; to require county officials to permit public inspection of election records for detection of fraud, and to impose jail sentences instead of fines on persons convicted to election law violations.

"Many of these suggestions, however, would be unnecessary if the voting machine were adopted," he said. "It helps frustrate many forms of fraud now possible under the paper ballot system and it also expedites and makes more accurate the count of votes."

BREAKS ARM IN FALL; REMOVAL TO HOSPITAL

Alex Meroff, 36, of Harwick, suffered a broken right arm last midnight when he fell at Sixth avenue and Forbes street.

BUTLER DOCTOR AND DRUGGIST IN DRY NET

Dr. Raymond A. Thompson, a well-known physician, and Marion R. Hay, a druggist, both of Butler, were arrested last night by Deputy United States Marshal David A. Goldman on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

When Goldman went to Butler to serve the warrants, he found Dr. Thompson in jail serving a 20-day sentence for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

The defendants posted $1,000 bond each for hearing before the United States commissioner.

JUDGE FREES GIRL TAKEN IN RAID

"You locked up this girl and threw the key away," declared Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court today, in addressing social workers, when he ordered the release of Marian Mandelbaum, 18, of 5 Overhill street, who had been committed to the New Future Home by Magistrate A. D. Brandon, of Morals Court. The girl, who was taken during a police raid and turned over to social workers, was granted her freedom on a writ of habeas corpus approved by Judge Drew after a hearing of only a few minutes, in which he scored her custodians for acting without authority.

"The girl was taken along with her mother when their home was raided by the police in search of moonshine," explained Magistrate Brandon. "Testimony before me showed that the best interests of the girl demanded that she be taken away from evil influences of the environment and the mother consented to this. The one important feature of this case was to do something for the welfare of the girl and to save her from further pitfalls. Acting on this principle, I gave her into the hands of women who are acting in the best interests of the child and of society in general. It was the commonsense thing to do."

SEE FIRE HAZARD IN STOVE POLISH

Stove polish is to be investigated by the Department of Public Safety.

Following reports that a number of explosions and fires have been caused by inflammable stove polish, a resolution ordering the department to make a thorough investigation was presented to Council by John S. Herron.

"We stopped the sale of fireworks as a safety measure," he remarked, "I suppose we have the power to protect housewives if dangerous stove polish is being sold."

GAS ON STOMACH BOTHERED HEART

Aged Lady Rid of Indigestion and Constipation, Thanks to Ten Herbs.

"Everything I ate caused me terrible misery," was the statement of Mrs. Annie Webb, 712 South Bates street, Saginaw, Mich., according to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the popular medicine, Ten Herbs. "It seemed as though my stomach was filled with sourness, fermentation and gas," continued Mrs. Webb, whose age is 72, and who has been a resident of Saginaw for 39 years. "I would belch gas and spit bits of food and a sour substance after eating. Gas bloated me and sometimes it would press against my heart and cause pains that were almost unbearable. My appetite was very poor.

"My liver was sluggish, which caused dizziness. My vision would be affected for hours at a time. I was nervous, and did not sleep well. My kidneys were not in good condition, and I had to arise often at night. I also suffered from the effects of constipation.

"Ten Herbs gave me wonderful results. My stomach has improved so much that I can eat anything without having sourness, fermentation, gas or other distress. My heart is normal again, and I am no longer constipated. Ten Herbs toned up my liver and kidneys, and I do not have to arise at night. I am free of nervousness, and my sleep is sound. I recommend Ten Herbs to anyone suffering from ailments similar to mine."

Ten Herbs is used and highly recommended for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It gives the system a thorough cleansing, usually making one feel better in every way.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

MELLON "MYSTERY MAN" IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE

DENIES REPORT HE'S BACKING HOOVER

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—With an emphatic denial of the report that he has decided to support the candidacy of Secretary Herbert Hoover, of the Department of Commerce, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon stood forth today as an admitted man of mystery in so far as the Republican presidential situation is concerned.

The Treasury Department head told Washington newspaper men at one of his conferences late Monday that there was absolutely no basis for the report, carried by an afternoon press association, that he had joined the forces seeking to nominate Secretary Hoover.

NOTHING TO SAY

"I don't know where this originated," said Mr. Mellon, "and have no knowledge whatever about it, other than that it did not originate with me.

"I haven't given any indication or intimation to anyone on the subject. As I have said all along, I am holding aloof, although this does not mean that I shall do so indefinitely. I am not obliged to take any position, and I am not going to give any information on what I think and what I expect to do."

Someone suggested here that Mr. Mellon, then, was to be regarded as a man of mystery.

"Yes, a man of mystery," he replied.

In a further effort to draw him out he was asked if this attitude might be interpreted as favorable to the Hoover cause.

"It can't be construed either for or against," he said.

Likewise the Treasury official volunteered no information on the recent report that he was prepared to urge the nomination of Senator David A. Reed of Pittsburgh. However, this was regarded at the time as more of a move for holding the Pennsylvania delegation intact, Senator Reed stating shortly afterwards that he had no ambitions in this direction at all.

REPORTED FOR DAWES

While various reports are being published and denied regarding the plans of Mr. Mellon it is permissible to mention another which is receiving current repetition. Namely, that he is more disposed to Vice President Charles G. Dawes than anyone else in the field.

This information comes from highly reliable sources close to former Senator George Wharton Pepper, who is quoted as saying the Mellon interests in the state are prepared to back Mr. Dawes if his candidacy assumes any proportions.

Still another, with less basis, has it that he will favor Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Republican leader of the upper chamber, who has announced his candidacy.

In the light of everything, however, there is little to indicate definitely just what he will do. The best classification into which he falls seems to be that which he himself admits, "man of mystery."

HOUSE BILL PROVIDES BROKERS' LOANS CURB

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A bill designed to curb broker's loans was filed in the House by Representative Dickenson (Rep.) of Iowa. Banks belonging to the Federal reserve system are required under the measure to enlarge their cash balances when they make loans for dealing in securities.

10,000 STORM JAIL

Schneider, is hidden away in a strong cell at the State Reformatory at Ionia, Mich.

The 47-year-old murderer, who was arrested late yesterday at his home at Owosso, was rushed to Lansing after a mob of 10,000 enraged citizens stormed the jail here and demanded his life.

MOB THREATENS AGAIN

The move from Lansing to the Ionia reformatory was made when authorities learned another mob was forming at the capital.

Hotelling is married and the father of five children, two of them married daughters. He was an elder of the Church of Christ at Owosso.

Hotelling's crime was one of the unspeakable atrocities that normal human beings can only shudder at but never understand. In its details are many striking parallels of the notorious Hickman case in Los Angeles.

Hotelling confessed while en route with his captors from Owosso, his home, to the Flint jail. He said he had driven his car to Flint to look for work and he was cruising through Mount Morris, a suburb, when he saw the little Schneider girl.

"I don't know why I did it," he said.

"I took her in the machine and drove around awhile. Then I carried her into a thicket, cut up her body and hid it down in the creek."

Hotelling then told of coming back to his car and finding it stuck in the mud. A farmer, he said, helped him out, after which he returned to his home at Owosso.

This farmer, Archie Bacon, who unwittingly aided the slayer, was the first to report the incident to police after the girl's body was found near his home. He has identified Hotelling as the man he helped out of the mud.

FIND BLOODY KNIFE

A large blood-stained knife, which Hotelling is said to have admitted using to kill the girl, was found on his person, according to arresting officers.

The little girl was kidnaped and slain last Thursday. Since that time the greatest manhunt in the history of Michigan had been underway. The tip that finally led to the guilty man's arrest came from Sheldon Robinson, a Mount Morris carpenter. Hotelling is also a carpenter.

Robinson told police he had been working with a man at Flushing, who, he believed, was the man they wanted. He said he talked continually about the crime and boasted that when the rewards were great enough he would "tell them just where to find the murderer."

CAUGHT WITH FAMILY

Deputy sheriffs from Flint speeded to Flushing, but found Hotelling had left the job there. They hastened on to Owosso and found the middle-aged man sitting comfortably at home with his wife and five children.

"It looked like a poor tip," one of the deputies said later, "but Hotelling's demeanor was anything but reassuring, so we looked around. We found the decrepit sedan described by Farmer Bacon and then we felt we were on the right track."

Mrs. Hotelling, the slayer's wife, broke down and sobbed that she was sure her husband "couldn't have done this thing."

The arrest of the churchman was a shock to his fellow citizens, who, despite the broadcasting of descriptions of the slayer's car, never suspected their pious elder.

Hotelling had been a deacon. Recently—three days after the crime—he was elevated to the rank of elder. The morning of the day he was made elder, he presided at communion services.

When news of his arrest and incarceration in the Flint jail went the rounds, citizens from Flint and nearby towns began to gather. The crowd grew around the jail to the number of 10,000. They demanded that the prisoner be delivered to them.

REPEL LYNCHING ATTEMPT

Their rushes on the jail were repelled by tear gas bombs, meanwhile a call for state troops went out and Hotelling was spirited to Lansing. Finally jail officials persuaded the leaders to appoint a committee to inspect the jail and assure themselves that the slayer was not there.

This was done, but even then the crowd was reluctant to disperse.

Michigan has a state law against capital punishment, for this reason the mob, made up mostly of factory workers, were determined to lynch the murderer.

Under the Michigan law, Hotelling must be brought back to Genesee county, where the crime occurred, for arraignment. He will be kept at Ionia, it was said, until feeling subsides and it will be safe to return him.

Torture - Slayer Calm, Eats Heartily

IONIA, Mich. Jan. 17—(INS.)—Adolph Hotelling, gentle-mannered church elder and self-confessed murderer of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider, calmly discussed plans to fight conviction today after arising from a sound sleep in Ionia prison and eating a hearty breakfast with apparent relish.

His jailers declared he appeared as unconcerned as if he were in the pew of the church where he presided only last Sunday at communion services.

Hotelling was brought here from Flint to escape mob vengeance.

ROADS BAD, MERCER CARRIERS USE HORSES

always sent her the required amount. She mortgaged the car I bought my son, and last summer I paid the amount and shipped the car home."

Mrs. Reynolds, according to Mrs. Vaughan, lost an alimony suit recently in Phoenix. His divorce action followed.

The bill was filed by Attorneys J. C. Niles of Phoenix and R. P. Marshall of Pittsburgh. It sets forth that the plaintiff and Raymond Reynolds married July 10, 1922, at Los Angeles, Cal., and they lived happily in Phoenix until April 1, 1927, with the plaintiff enjoying her husband's "affections, support, protection and respect." Mrs. Reynolds avers that during 1926 and 1927 Mrs. Vaughan "wickedly and wilfully" contrived to deprive her of her husband and to alienate and destroy his affection, and characterized Mrs. Reynolds as a "rip."

Mrs. Vaughan is described in the bill of complaint as a woman of "large means and great wealth," and it alleges she threatened to change provisions of her will if the couple continued to live together. Mrs. Vaughan, according to the bill, told the plaintiff's husband, in May, 1927, that Mrs. Reynolds was constantly begging, borrowing, harassing and importuning her for money, which the plaintiff denies.

FACING ARREST, TAKES POISON

Arraigned on a disorderly conduct charge because he had taken poison rather than submit to arrest, Leo McCullough, 26, of 1252 Stedman street, was discharged by Magistrate E. M. Hough in Allegheny Police Court today. At the same time he was taken in tow by Central Police Court attaches to face two charges of larceny filed by his landlady, Mrs. Hannah Fillmore.

McCullough was discharged from St. John's Hospital yesterday after three weeks' confinement. In his rooming house he had swallowed poison when officers arrived to serve warrants on him.

'MISSING' TARENTUM BOY AT GRANDMOTHER'S HOME

Missing from home since Sunday afternoon, Robert Owen, 12, son of R. L. Owen, 615 East Seventh avenue, Tarentum, was located late yesterday at the home of a grandmother in Indiana. The boy said he had "bummed" his way along the highways and had slept in a barn Sunday night.

JAIL CROWDED, WARDEN ASKS RELIEF

The county jail is so crowded that two, and in a number of cases, three prisoners are jammed into one cell. Warden John McNeil declares that unless immediate relief is forthcoming, new prisoners will have to be quartered in other places than cells.

Not since war days have so many prisoners been housed at the institution. Yesterday more than 800 were on the jail record, with 600 cells available.

Today Warden McNeil will ask the county commissioners to request Mayor Charles H. Kline to direct police magistrates to send to the workhouse all persons receiving sentences of more than 10 days. The request was sent to the magistrates some time ago and for a time they complied, but lately they have been sending all cases to the jail.

Warden McNeil also will ask the commissioners to appeal to court judges to sentence long time prisoners to the workhouse. Yesterday there were more than 100 jail prisoners from the courts who were serving from 90 days to six years.

"Something must be done and done quickly," Warden McNeil said.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is in favor of the warden's suggestion. Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock are expected to approve it, also.

DRINK PROFFER DRAWS 16 DAYS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 17.—A Christmas gift of a pint of whisky and his effort to spread yuletide cheer by offering Justice of the Peace Paul Nutt of Charleroi a drink resulted in A. H. Baker, aged 50, also of Charleroi, being sentenced to a term of 16 days in the county jail and fined $100 by Judge James I. Brownson today.

Baker pleaded guilty to a transportation and possession charge. Baker and Justice of the Peace Nutt have been lifelong friends. He decided to share his Christmas gift with the official. He entered the office of Justice of the Peace Nutt, he was followed by Constable Joseph Andrews and a fellow officer and taken into custody.

Night Coughs Quickly Relieved

Stopped in 15 Minutes with Thoxine

Most coughing is caused by an irritated, inflamed throat or bronchial tubes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. But a famous physician's prescription recently discovered called Thoxine goes direct to the cause, relieves the inflamed membranes and stops the cough almost instantly. One swallow does the work, and the remarkable thing about it is that it contains no dope, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Pleasant tasting. Safe for children. Once used the whole family will rely on it. 35c, 60c, and $1.00. At all druggists.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, "but could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Some constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling her need of a little calcium.

Calcium work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny bit of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium tablet.

A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium, and the benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them for 10c. Or the family size, 60c. Start this test today!

DANDRUFF

Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

DRINK FORMULA CHANGE LEGAL

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Uncle Sam's prohibition chemists, waging an everlasting battle to make industrial alcohol proof against "cooking" and illegal diversion by bootleggers, can change government alcohol formulas at will, the U. S. Supreme Court holds.

The court declined to review a lower court decision adverse to the Lacquer and Chemical Corporation of New York, which had contested the right of the treasury to change its denatured alcohol formula during the life of the permit.

Prohibition chemists, trying to keep one jump ahead of bootlegger chemists, have changed alcohol formulas from time to time when it was discovered that methods had been devised to redistill the alcohol and divert it for beverage use.

Mrs. Winifred Lapham of the McCall Pattern Company Will Be at the McCreery Pattern Department Again Tomorrow to Give Expert Advice to Home Dressmakers.

THE McCREERY JANUARY CLEARANCE

With full cognizance of what Pittsburgh expects of this store when the very first harbingers of Spring fashions and accessories appear, this clearance, involving every department in the store, is imperative. The great modistes and couturiers of Paris have declared the styles—already our buyers are in the world's markets.

Away must go all seasonable merchandise—all odd ments and remnants. Nothing will be carried over—the emphatic reductions taken assure that! Profit by these real savings—savings on McCreery Quality merchandise.

Chic Sale Keeps Audience In Uproar in Alvin Theater As "Gay Paree" Whirls Along

By GEORGE SEIBEL

ANOTHER funny man is in town—Chic Sale—one of the funniest! He is one-half of "Gay Paree," the Winter Garden revue that is filling the Alvin Theater with gayety this week. While he is on the stage the audience is convulsed. His "Zither Club" scene is one of the most hilarious howls that could be imagined in a convention of humorists. And besides he is an actor of convincing power in serious moments, as he showed last night in the sketch "He Knew Lincoln," which is credited to Ida Tarbell. Finally, he seldom gets off-color, which cannot be said for all the comedians and comediennes in this revue. There are some very ancient and very tough gags in it, but set in the midst of so much glitter and movement that they are forgotten almost as soon as they have ben pulled off. Violent contrasts abound—as when Rita Gould exhibits her bracelets as "service stripes" and two minutes later sings a weepy ballad about her baby's little shoes. We are shown a lovely tableau of "The Gold Plaque," which might have been copied from Alma-Tadema, and a little later the venerable "nearly-fell-out-of-bed" quip is sprung on us as if it were a Kohinoor of wit.

GEORGE SEIBEL

Well, there is Chick Sale, and he makes up for all the rough spots. And there is a finale to the first act, "The Vintner's Dream," with a staircase descending across the entire stage, up which the girls of the bacchanal swarm and repose, that is quite the most ravishing revel of the sort viewed here this season. The song of the Grape Vendor which precedes also is worth hearing, for it is sung splendidly by Paul Davis, who has one of the best voices heard here in any revue this season. Add to these features some dances by Irene Cornell, and a marvelous character dance by the Kelo Brothers, a well-trained and gorgeously costumed chorus, and Chick Sale—and we have a combination that makes grand entertainment, with an occasional jar or bump where the producer's good taste has slipped a cog.

Revues of this sort are beginning to resemble one another more and more. Even the costumes, what there is of them, are lapsing into sameness. In this respect the Moroccan drill and the Zulu dance afforded some pleasing variety. But the individuality of each production now depends almost entirely upon its comedians, and in this respect "Gay Paree" is extremely fortunate. It has Chic Sale—and when he is on the boards there can be no Blue Monday.

"NIGHT LIFE" CURRENT CAMERAPHONE PICTURE

"Night Life," featuring Alice Day and John Harron, is being presented in the Cameraphone this week. The picture offers a dramatic story of life in Vienna before, during and after the World War. The cast includes Eddie Gribbon and Walter Hiers. The Cameraphone bill also includes a Mack Sennett comedy and news pictures.

Music Act Tops Variety in Sheridan

In the Sheridan Square, "Fifty Miles from Broadway," a merry musical comedy, was the featured stage attraction, with girls, comedians, and a wealth of scenic effects adding to its attractiveness. Ethel and Jean Browne had an offering of chatter and song. The four Casting Stars appeared in an aerial novelty. On the screen was Edmund Lowe, in "The Wizard," a mystery drama of beauty and the beast. Merely and Anger, in a comedy act. F. E. Dilk, in a new organiogue, additional screen features and other attractions completed the bill.

Travesty Skits Featured in Academy

Comedy in "Girls from Happyland," this week's burlesque in the Academy, is provided mainly by travesty skits, among which are "The Indian Reservation" and "General Nuisance." Irving Selig, the principal comedian, plays several widely contrasting characters. Ben Mann, Tom McKenna and Ben Lerner assist in the foolery. Esta Alga appears as a specialist. Rose Lee, and Fritzi White sing and take part in the comedy sketches. "Mme. Fifi's Boudoir," presented by the principals, is a burletta. Anna Claire makes her first appearance in the Academy in Oriental dances, her specialty being elaborately staged.

"MOON OF ISRAEL" IN CAMEO SECOND WEEK

"Moon of Israel," a Romance of Biblical times, has been held over for a second week's showing in the Cameo. Maria Corda and Arlette Marchal are featured in the cast.

Entertainers -:- On Pittsburgh Stage -:- This Week

HOWARD THURSTON is presenting his magic show, which includes many new illusions, in the Pitt.

RITA GOULD is among those who make "Gay Paree" live up to its objective in the Alvin Theater.

ROSALIND RUBY, lyric soprano, adds tone, vocally and personally, to the Davis vaudeville bill.

BILLY B. VAN, funny man, makes merry in "One Sunny Day," comedy with music, playing the Nixon.

FOY FUN FEAST IN DAVIS

Eddie Foy has a much greater pride in his record as a family man than in his achievements as a comedian. He is the father of eight fine children—and six of them appear in the Davis this week in an act of their own, which shows them truly to be "chips of the old block." Their moving picture scene and the bed-time story about Little Red Riding-Hood are side-splitting. They dance, sing and clown admirably, as part of the fine vaudeville bill, and they have much competition. Al Gordon has some dogs that are fine comedians and good dancers. Olive Thorne plays a Swedish maiden with rich humor in a sketch called "Sold," in which Frank Rose, as an automobile salesman, is the bargain. The Yacopi Troupe are acrobats who can perform triple and quadruple somersaults as easy as playing leapfrog. Rosalind Ruby, billed as the shop-girl prima donna, has a fine voice with an altitude record, and also can put feeling into her songs. Then there are Guy and Pearl Magley, dashing dancers, with some Japanese or Filipino serenaders, and the doll-like Melvin Sisters. Altogether a very good vaudeville bill, while the film romance presents Esther Ralston and Neil Hamilton in "The Spotlight," which gives glimpses of stage life.

"One Sunny Day" Makes Hit With Audience in Nixon; Is Farce With Good Songs

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

TUNEFUL music and twinkling toes swept "One Sunny Day" right into the good graces of the Nixon audience last night, the piece making an impression that is unusual with productions the success of which had not been previously heralded. Perhaps those who made up the audience had a premonition of the good things in store or maybe they had been attracted to the theater by the promise contained in the names of prominent artists appearing in the company. Whatever the reason they turned out in house capacity numbers and they were given their reward in a piece of stage workmanship that stands out in several respects.

For the comedy "One Sunny Day" depends upon a story that is distinctly French and it has not been Americanized except in language. For the rest it depends upon the usual musical comedy accessories, singing, dancing, beautiful girls and ornate settings. Only the airs of the songs are much prettier than the average, the dancing ensembles are marked by originality in arrangement and execution, the specialty dancing is high class and the stage pictures are of the kind that entrance with their charm, even to the extent of causing the audience to applaud approvingly. Add to all this a pristine newness, floral beauty and fluffiness of costume and a creation that is a combination of fun and loveliness emerges.

Then on top of all is a cast that forecasts much and makes good. Frank McIntyre is a Parisian banker who masquerades as his own chief clerk while carrying on a flirtation with a shop girl. Billy B Van is the clerk, a man who despises women until—. Lynn Overman is a young author loving and loved by the shop girl, who explains the banker by saying he is her father. Jeanette MacDonald is the shop girl, whose fibbing leads to all kinds of complications, among them adoption by the wife of Banker McIntyre—just forget about the names of the characters—and the threatened arrest of the banker for impersonating his respectable clerk. To make him forget it the banker makes him tipsy and the clerk forgets all about having foresworn women. The height of the farce comes when the banker is introduced by his wife to his "foster-daughter," his girl friend of the shops.

All concerned get the most out of their parts, Van and McIntyre leading in the fun, Van being especially funny in his tipsy scene. Lynn Overman is a droll blunderer and Miss MacDonald is a charming singer and a skillful dancer. Others who made good were Rosalie Claire, as a pert and sophisticated friend of the shop girl, Carl Randall, friend of the philandering banker, and Audrey Maple, as the wife of the banker, giving the part graciousness and beauty.

Randall also was the leading male dancer and he made the show his own in his every appearance as a stepper, first in a pleasing number with Peggy Cornell, the latter appearing in a minor part, and in a ballet, with Charlotte Ayres and himself in solo and duet performances, Miss Ayres demonstrating grace and skill as a toe dancer.

The song numbers were melodious throughout, but the hits appeared to be "One Sunny Day," "Really and Truly" and "So Do I," the two latter sung and danced by Miss MacDonald and Mr. Overman. Incidentally, the winsome Miss MacDonald has a pleasing voice. "I've Got to Be Good," gave Mr. McIntyre opportunity to shine in a comedy song. Mr. Van's vocal opportunity was in "Hang Your Hat on the Moon," in company with Miss Claire and Mr. Randall, this piece also being one of the more popular ones.

"One Sunny Day" is distinctly worth while.

PLAYLET TOPS HARRIS BILL

A playlet, "The Lucky Stiff," tops the vaudeville bill in the Harris this week. Two men meet in the park. One comes behind a carriage—a baby carriage. The other comes in a motor car. Each thinks the other is "the lucky stiff." The playlet, which pleases a lot, features George Spalding and Geraldine Wood, two performers from the legitimate stage. Gene Greene, singer and comedian, carries away a lot of honors. Yesterday afternoon he won round after round of applause with his dialect stories and vocal efforts. Madge Maitland comes along as a "wall flower" type of femininity, and entertains with chatter and musical patter. The art of bag punching is displayed by Ross and Ross in a rather novel manner. The younger Ross is heralded as a champion bag puncher. He certainly can keep them moving—five or more at one time. Stella Tracey and Jay Elwood have an act of nonsense. Tom Mix rides across the screen in his newest picture, "The Arizona Wildcat." He plays polo and takes Tony automobile riding. Oh yes, he has the girl in the final fadeout. Short screen features and an organiogue are on the bill.

THURSTON AT PITT PUZZLES

Thurston, who comes to town as regularly as the snow, is with us once more with nimble fingers and glib tongue. Mr. Thurston opened what will probably be a happy engagement in the Pitt last night to an audience of mystified children, puzzled women and dubious menfolk.

Thurston might be excused if he were to lapse into a staleness, for he is without competition. But each season he manages to return with something newer and equally mystifying paraphernalia, possibly from India, possibly from Egypt, more possibly from his own workshop in the East. Regardless, Thurston fools you, which is what he tries to do. The closer you scrutinize the alert Thurston, the more successfully Thurston fools you. The hand, he tells you, is quicker than the eye; and as he tells you he fools you. He disclaims supernatural powers, but you begin to doubt his modesty before the first curtain. He may be the man from Mars.

Thurston's is a peculiar entertainment. Children, obviously, cry for it. Amateur experts who have performed in the best of parlors suspect it. And if you pride yourself as an intellectual, Thurston will supply you an entertaining battle of wits, the less you know of so-called magic the better.

This is Thurston's twenty-second season in lower berths and probably his best. He will order vanished from in front of your very eyes a gentleman on a rope. He will chop, with more than surgical precision, a human in half or, if you prefer, he will bury a human being alive at each performance and laugh at the morticians. Best of all he will present a finished showman who answers to the name of Howard Thurston.

May all of his children be magicians!

"Ginger Girls" Do Pinch-Hit Act in Gayety

"Ginger Girls" appeared in the Gayety yesterday afternoon in place of "Jazz Babies," the latter company not having arrived. The usual Sunday midnight show was not given. A hurried S. O. S. was sent out by Manager Bragg and "Ginger Girls" got into town from Buffalo in time to do the pinch-hitting role for "Jazz Babies" at the regular hour for the opening of the Monday matinee. Owing to the sudden shift in the arrangements there were no printed programs. The reviewer might try to identify the players by referring to the costumes, but comedians in big check suits that all look so near alike and girls in the usual burlesque attire and song and dance men in Tuxedos make that rather a problem. So, to be brief, "Ginger Girls" is the average burlesque show, with a spot here and there above the average.

WITNESS TALKS WITH JUROR, HALT TRIAL

Because a witness talked with a juror, a damage suit in Common Pleas Court was discontinued by Judge Josiah Cohen yesterday.

The court explained that the case had been discontinued for reasons best known to the court and counsel. Apparently neither the juror nor the witness knew that their conversation had brought the halt. They were not reprimanded nor were they named. The conversation was said to have been on topics other than the trial.

The case was the suit of Dorothea Westhoff against the borough of Bellevue for injuries suffered when she stepped into a hole in a sidewalk. The suit had been on trial for several days. It will be relisted for later trial.

COUNCIL HEAD QUITS IN ROW

Dissension among officials of Swissvale borough over selection of a borough health officer brought many arguments at a meeting of council last night and announcement from R. W. Stitt, president of council, that he would resign from office. His resignation will be officially received tomorrow night, at a special meeting of council.

The trouble arose over the appointment of W. R. Rushworth as health officer to fill the place of Samuel L. Glascoe, who was ousted by council at its organization meeting. The borough board of health refused to accept Rushworth, and asked that Glascoe be retained.

Council last night asked for the resignation of the entire health board, and appointed another body to act in this capacity. This was done over the protests of Stitt, who announced that he would resign as president of council.

WOULD EXTEND TAX PAY TIME

The discount period for city taxes would be extended until February 15 by the terms of a resolution presented in council by Daniel Winters. A discount of 2 per cent is allowed for taxes paid during January. The resolution was introduced because the collection of taxes had been delayed until yesterday.

Thomas C. McMahon, city assessor, explained to council that his office had established a new record in entering city taxes this year, the work being completed in 14 working days after council had fixed the millage. Council President James F. Malone declared that the assessors had done their work quickly and efficiently.

SUE CITY FOR STREET WIDENING DAMAGES

J. W. Cree, Jr., and Harmar Denny, Jr., as trustees under the will of Joseph O'Hara Denny, and Thomas L. Ashcom, have entered suit in assumpsit against the City of Pittsburgh asking $6,548. They allege their property in the Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth wards was damaged by the widening of Irwin avenue, North Side.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Stage and Play Society's Performance to Revive Stagnant Season Here

ONE is inclined to be curious as to why the social season seems to last longer in the East than it does here. News coming in from New York, Philadelphia and Washington tells of all sorts of parties and balls being held all during this month, with the debutantes coming in for their full share of entertaining. While here—well, it is hardly necessary to say that the season is quite, quite over.

There is one event, though, planned for the first day in February which, while it is not a party, is quite as interesting both socially and as a matter of entertainment. That is the Stage and Play Society's second performance of the year, to be given, as usual, in Carnegie Music Hall. Of the three plays to be given, the most important, of course, is the one written by Carroll Hamilton Fitzhugh, president of the society. He calls it "Margaret in Naxof." The two others are to be "The Valiant," by Robert Middlemass and Holworthy Hall, and "Double Demon."

I wonder if all of her Pittsburgh friends know that Mrs. Edward Schofield Travers, the former Louise Allderdice, who left with Dr. Travers several years ago to live in St. Louis, is president of the Junior League there. Mrs. Travers, who lives in Lindell boulevard, has turned over her home this afternoon for the annual tea given in honor of the young women who have been invited to become members of the League there this season, and to transfer membership from other cities.

A September bride, Mrs. Frank Stoner, Jr., the former Jane Veeder Nicholson, is to be entertained on Friday afternoon, when Mrs. Howard Shaw of Grove street, Sewickley, will give an informal bridge party at her home. The guests are to include members of the debutante and younger married sets of Sewickley.

Katherine Deming Clapp's engagement to William Ayres Galbraith of Sewickley, which was announced in the fall by her parents, the George Hubbard Clapps of Woodland road, Edgeworth, is to terminate in a home wedding on Saturday, February 4, it was made known today. The ceremony will be performed at 5:30 o'clock in the Clapp home.

While the South is luring many of our society folks away just now, there are a few who prefer the winter sports in the Adirondacks, at least for a while. Among them are Mrs. Julian Burdick of Von Lent place, and her daughters, Frances and Martha. They took part in the Salmagundi party held at the club last Friday, and this coming Friday are going to attend the annual figure skating competition and fancy costume ice carnival on Friday and Saturday. At the same time there will be a sledge-dog race for awards to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Hendrix of Fishers Island, N. Y.

TRAVEL VS. EDUCATION DISCUSSED BEFORE CLUB

Answering her own question as to "Travel Versus Education For a Girl" before the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Cornelia Stratton Parker said, "It all depends—on the girl, the college and the amount and kind of travel she will do." If a girl be clever and so well-rounded that she will develop no matter what she does, let her travel; if she be fatalistic let her go to college; if she be over-clocked already then let her get away from system; if she be hectic about the heart and will look upon Europe merely as another hunting ground, college is the place for her—these were a few of the suggestions made by Mrs. Parker, who is mother as well as teacher, lecturer and author. The kind of college, its tradition, location and faculty were also discussed, the speaker remarking: "The matter of faculty cannot be over stressed, for a girl may come in contact with one inspirational personality that will open up new worlds for her." The points discussed by Mrs. Parker under the head of travel were "Where, With Whom and How Long." If a girl is to be given travel instead of an education, she should see at least Europe and have at least one year, preferably two years, she declared. Moreover, she may as well have college as to see Europe in company with "a kittenish widowed aunt who thinks Europe is summed up in Venice by moonlight, Monte Carlo and a glimpse of the King of Spain at Biarritz" or with a "beetle-browed old-maid aunt who quotes guide books." The month of September, rightly lived in Geneva, will give a girl more interest in the world than the entire four years of college, Mrs. Parker stated, in concluding her discussion of "the intangibles" (literature, history, pliability, eagerness, tolerance and political background) to be procured from either college or travel.

Sixteen members of the Women's Club of McDonald were present as guests of the club, this being the second invitational group to visit the Sewickley club this year in accordance with a new policy established. Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison, president, entertained informally at tea in her home for Mrs. Parker, the club women dropping in after the meeting.

Its thirtieth anniversary was observed with a tea party yesterday by the Monday Club of Carnegie in the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. W. H. Staley, the president, welcomed the guests who included, in addition to the members, their friends, former members and the club's waiting list. Ten past presidents, Mrs. George Gow, Mrs. W. W. Andrews, Mrs. W. H. Roberts, Mrs. M. Carnahan, Mrs. T. W. Gray, Mrs. J. M. Duff, Mrs. Nina Hood McCullough, Mrs. J. C. Aitland, Mrs. O. S. Heck and Mrs. H. F. Botsford, spoke briefly and Miss M. H. Strous gave a history of the club. Thirteen charter members were present. Violin solos by Miss Gladys Cain, accompanied by Mrs. O. H. Phillips; "Treasures from the Monday Club's memory chest," which proved to be songs by the club quartet, and a play, "Not a Man in the House," completed the program. In the cast of the play were Mrs. E. J. Doudna, Mrs. Botsford, Mrs. George McFarland, Mrs. R. F. Westerman and Mrs. J. H. Mulvey.

A change in the meeting place has been made by the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg for its musicale next Monday. Instead of meeting in the Community House the members will gather in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel for a program under the direction of Mrs. A. H. McIntire, music chairman. The numbers will be given by Letha Frazier Rankin, soprano; Oscar Helfenbein, pianist, and Charles Riley, violinist, with Virginia Brown Williams as accompanist.

Sterrett Women's Christian Temperance Union celebrated "victory day" with a social today in the Community House, Union avenue, North Side. Prohibition as "the best method" for the home, for the church and for the nation was the theme of discussion. Mrs. Amelia Campbell conducted the music.

In his talk before the Alliance Francaise in the Twentieth Century Club Saturday night, Andre Morize will discuss Paul Claudel, the French ambassador to the United States, who is also a poet and a dramatist. Following the lecture a supper will be given in Prof. Morize's honor, reservations for which are to be made with Miss Emma B. Suydam, Aiken avenue, not later than Thursday night.

Through the president, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, members of the Congress of Clubs have been invited to meet with the American Association of University Women Saturday night in the lecture hall of Carnegie Institute. Arthur S. Coggeshall, of the Museum, will speak on "Turning Back the Clock 10,000,000 years."

* * *

"Earthquakes and Volcanoes" is the subject upon which Dr. Ransom E. Somers, eminent geologist and consulting engineer, will speak Friday afternoon before the College Club. The afternoon's hostesses are: Mrs. Walter S. Church, Mrs. Martin N. Ballard, Mrs. Thomas W. Pomeroy, Mrs. H. Ryerson Decker, Mrs. Austin L. George and Miss Eleanor Clark.

WEALTHY W. VA. PAIR NABBED ON DRY CHARGE

Harry Gee, wealthy electrical manufacturer, and Dr. Joseph A. Meagher, vice president of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association, and head of the Industrial Relations Association of Wheeling, both of Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday were arrested on federal warrants charging them with conspiring to violate the prohibition law. The charge arises from the seizure of five barrels of whisky and wines last week in the Water street yard of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad here. The liquor, according to prohibition authorities, was to have been delivered to Gee's home. Since the seizure, six other arrests have been made.

Joseph A. Frayne, assistant prohibition administrator in charge of the enforcement unit, went to Wheeling and directed the serving of the warrants. Gee and Dr. Meagher posted bonds for hearings. Meagher, according to government investigators, arranged for the shipping of the liquor from Newark, N. J. It arrived in Pittsburgh as a consignment of "sirup," shipped by Newark Sirup Company" to the "American Sirup Products Company."

AUTO DAMAGE COST HELD EXEMPT IN INCOME TAX

"A motorist who sustains damage to his automobile, as the result of an accident, provided he is not compensated for his loss by insurance or otherwise, may deduct such losses in the computation of his income tax, according to a revolutionary decision just handed down by the United States Board of Tax Appeals of the Internal Revenue Bureau," states C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

TROTZKY EXILE TO BEGIN

By Universal Service.

RIGA, Jan. 17.—According to a message from Moscow, Leon Trotzky has received urgent marching orders to travel to the town of Vyernyi, in Turkestan, accompanied by agents of the G. P. U., or secret police. He will leave before the end of the week.

Kamenev, Zinoviev, Rakovsky and Seriabriakoff have similarly received notice of their places of exile.

Promises Long, Healthy Life To Weak, Thin-Blooded People

Scientists Discover "Mysterious Substance" in Beef Livers That Makes Rich Red Blood and Creates Strength, Vigor and Vitality—Often in 8 Days.

There's wonderful help for men and women who are rundown, weak, tired-out and thin blooded.

In New York and other big cities progressive physicians are prescribing a diet of beefs liver.

They have found by actual tests that patients far gone with pernicious anemia—so far gone that life itself was only a matter of months—have been restored to robust health.

In order to get this "Mysterious Substance" or vitamines in a greatly condensed form, one of New York's famous Laboratories is putting up a liquid elixir known to Pharmacists as Hemo-Liver.

This preparation is not a patent medicine — the vitamines are extracted by a new process from fresh beefs liver so that all the blood making, health creating substance is saved.

It is not a patent medicine, but a pleasant to take elixir which all thin blooded people and especially those who need more vigor and vitality are urged to try.

Hemo-Liver is now dispensed by all druggists who keep abreast of the times with the distinct understanding that if one bottle does not help—wonderfully—your money will be returned.

Men and women who are suffering from lowered vitality, general weakness, overwork, nervous breakdown or anemia, can put their faith in Hemo-Liver. For feeble old people, girls 13 to 18 and in convalescence it won't fail. It strengthens the nerves, increases the red blood cells, promotes health and rebuilds energy so quickly that often physicians are astonished.

How a man may look when his blood is thin and watery and the change that takes place when his blood is rich and red.

ADDITIONAL STAGE AND SCREEN NEWS

ALDINE OFFERS SONG ACT

Harry Girard and his company of 14 or so girls are responsible for a charming act of song and dance in the Aldine this week. Myra Lee, lyric soprano, is featured. The act includes solo and ensemble numbers, all presented with pleasing scenic and lighting effects. Mr. Girard goes into the pit and leads the theater orchestra. He also sings a solo number and participates in other vocal selections offered by his company. Barret and Cuneen appear in a comedy act, with the "rube" type dominating. In it an old gentleman from the country, who has enough money in the bank to bury him, decides to let the county pay the expenses upon meeting a certain woman. Smith and Hart mix comedy, song and dance. They get the applause. Lew Castleton and Max Mack win approval with their dance act. France and La Pell are "In the Air" on the trapeze. The screen feature is "The Wreck of the Hesperus," suggested by Longfellow's ballad. The cast includes Virginia Bradford, Frank Marion and Sam De Grasse. Short film entertainment completes the bill.

Sills Is Fighter on Screen in Grand

Milton Sills has another fighting role in "The Valley of the Giants," photoplay feature on the Grand screen. He fights two ways—with his wits and business instinct, and also with his fists, doing both well. The picture, a film version of a tale of the California lumber industry by Peter B. Kyne, shows some magnificent natural scenes of the great redwood forests, the struggle for which forms the basis of the photoplay. Among the scenes is a runaway log train, which crashes into a gully—but not until after the hero has uncoupled the caboose in which the heroine is and brakes it so it does not follow the log cars. This and two fist fights, with a mob encounter to hold a railroad crossing, are the big thrills. There is a romantic interest, too, with Doris Kenyon playing opposite Mr. Sills, her husband. George Fawcett has a prominent role. On the stage the Six Dixie Daisies, in songs, dances and instrumental pieces, and the Four Symphonists, in vocal and instrumental melodies from operas, offer "Jazz vs. Symphony." News pictures, a Lloyd Hamilton comedy, "Topics of the Day" and orchestral music complete the program.

Haines in Comedy and Specialties in Penn

"West Point" is being shown on the screen of the Penn. It is a picture you will like, with plenty of comedy and a pleasing love angle. William Haines plays the hero and Joan Crawford is the heroine. Haines is a fresh young man whom you can't help liking despite his insistence on being the life of the party and a generally amusing pest—his nuisance character being mitigated by a real heart. He marks his arrival as a plebe at West Point with the observation that "West Point is going to amount to something from now on." It takes a couple of years of good comedy to cure him but he comes through like a major—or, rather, second lieutenant, which, we believe, is the graduating rank. There is plenty of action, with life at West Point as a basis, football included. On the stage Dave Harman and his orchestra play in Spanish costume and setting, introducing Billy Randall, dancing violinist; Monoff and Gifford, girl singers; the Dancing Debutantes in the Black Bottom, Alice Brennan, singing and dancing the lead; Zanou and DeLima, tango dancers, and members of the orchestra in specialties. An overture and Dick Leibert, in an organ novelty, also are featured.

East End Offers Melodrama as Bill

Harry Schwartz's players took a large audience globe-trotting in the East End Theater last night. The event was the presentation of "The Man Who Came Back," a melodrama, the action of which extends from New York, to San Francisco, to Shanghai, to Honolulu and then back to New York. The plot has to do with a son of wealth, who, after sinking to the depths upon being forced, by his father, to make his own way in the world, stages a "come-back."

Ray Rawlings furnishes the heroics as the son. Blanche Wilcox, as a cabaret girl, carried the feminine lead. Ernest Kast portrays the father. A couple of captains also figure in the plot. One is an Englishman, played by Everett Johnstone, and the other the master of the schooner that takes the son to Shanghai. This role is portrayed by J. Arthur Gordon, who also is responsible for the direction of the production. Other players are Mrs. Ed McHugh, Mildred Lee, Ed Downes and Beth Burke.

The drama offers romance and comedy, as well as melodramatics. It was well received by last night's audience.

OLYMPIC VITAPHONE OFFERS VOCAL GROUP

The Four Aristocrats, Vitaphone's popular instrumental and vocal group, are presenting a new song offering in the Olympic this week. Crowell and Parvis, youthful vaudevillians, are seen and heard in dances and songs. "Amateur Night," a dramatic skit, concludes the Vitaphone program. The screen attraction is "The Wizard," a mystery play, starring Edmund Lowe. Leila Hymans plays the leading feminine role. In the supporting cast are Gustav Von Seyferitz and Norman Trevor and others.

KOCHANSKI TO PLAY CONCERTO BY BACH

Paul Kochanski, Polish violinist, will give the fifth May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tonight. FILE PETITION TO FILL VACANCY DEATH CAUSED

To fill a vacancy caused by the death of Henry Waldman, who was elected in November as township commissioner of the Fifth Ward, Shaler township, the appointment of Walter L. Grob was asked in a petition of 176 residents of the ward presented to Judge James R. Macfarlane in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday. A hearing was fixed for January 23.

MELLONNATIONAL NO. 32 ON LIST

Four of Pittsburgh's great banking institutions are listed among the 100 largest banks in the country, according to figures released today by the American Banker.

The Mellon National Bank heads the local list and is the thirty-second largest bank in the country in point of deposits. Following in order the other three local institutions are the Union Trust, which is No. 43 in the national list; the First National Bank at Pittsburgh, which is No. 79, and the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., No. 92. Heading the country's list of 100 banks is the National City Bank, New York, with deposits of $1,275,000,000. It is followed in order by the Chase National, New York, with deposits of $792,000,000, and the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, with deposits of $720,000,000. The Mellon National's deposits are $165,827,000. The compilation is based on the reports as of December 31, 1927.

Of the 100 largest banks in the country, 28 are located in New York City, while Chicago has 11, San Francisco comes next with nine; then Philadelphia with eight, and Boston with six, followed by Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and Detroit with four each. Buffalo, St. Louis and Cleveland have three each.

ALTER AGAIN HEADS PARTING WAYS HOME

George E. Alter, former attorney general of Pennsylvania, was re-elected president of the Parting of the Ways Home at the annual meeting of the board of directors of that institution yesterday afternoon in the home's headquarters, 216 East Stockton avenue, North Side.

All the other officers and all members of the board of directors were reelected for one year. These are Judge W. H. S. Thomson of the United States District Court, vice president; R. C. Schanck, secretary; R. L. Thompson, treasurer; Rollo H. McBride, superintendent, and George S. Oliver, C. K. Robinson, William B. Rodgers, Jr., George A. Martin, William S. Van Dyke, the Rev. Dr. John McNaugher, Judge Joseph Buffington, Walter Rosenbaum and F. W. Ries, Jr., directors.

DETONOX GASOLINE

Do you buy a particular brand of gasoline because you believe that kind best? Or do you buy "just gasoline"—thinking "all gasolines are alike"?

Motorists who use DETONOX know that all gasolines are not alike. They have found DETONOX different—and better seven ways!

Ask any user of DETONOX!

He will tell you, "to step on the starter means an instant start." "Its bounding pick-up gives an edge on traffic." Smooth, buoyant power without clattering knocks . . . more miles per gallon.

Not just one, but seven reasons for buying DETONOX!

Better 7 Ways

1. Non-detonating
2. Instant starting
3. Lightning pick-up
4. Giant power
5. Better mileage
6. Clean, less carbon
7. Safe for you and your motor

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Turned Down for Insurance

If there's anything insurance companies are careful about, it's your blood pressure. High blood pressure indicates a dangerous state of health that may cut life short. It is a condition due to our abnormal living habits, which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak and sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in the food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected. The liver, especially at middle life, needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as physicians today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to health and vitality. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and one or two days' use will prove a revelation. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol.

LEON TROTZKY

With Leon Trotsky and his followers deposed from the government of the Russian Soviet, a regime of rigorous punishment, comparable to that of the czars, has been established by the Stalin administration. Trotzky has been banished to Astrakhan, the remote and inhospitable part of Russia; Rakovsky and Kamenev to the wilds of Tobolsk, and Zinoviev to the Ural Mountains.

AUTO SHOW TO STRESS BEAUTY, EXCELLENCE

Motor car style, safety, easy riding and performance are four subjects of which the automobile enthusiasts of this district will learn much when the annual show opens Saturday night in Motor Square Garden for one week.

These four principles have been the objectives toward which all automobile manufacturers have been striving for their latest creations, and when the doors of Motor Square Garden are opened at 7:30 o'clock the visitors will find better looking cars, larger, roomier cars with higher road speeds, better braking, better steering and better equipment, and all at new values.

Among the 28 different lines of cars that will go on display the show visitor will find that radiators are narrower and higher, fenders a bit wider and more graceful, roof lines have been lowered, as have running boards. Windows have been made larger and a decided trend to new values in body interiors and hardware will be noted.

Longer wheelbases with longer and wider springs will tell of a new riding comfort, and many of the cars will be found equipped with some kind of shock-absorbing equipment. Increased safety has been achieved through the universal adoption of four-wheel brakes, which have followed in the wake of more powerful engines.

Following the first showing Saturday night, the exhibit will reopen daily from 10:30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. for the week of January 23. The show is being staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association.

Troubles Amid Cactus and Sagebrush Are Good Experiences

Col. Lindbergh told yesterday in the installment of "We" in the Sun-Telegraph of his travels in the South with Klink while waiting for a report on his examination for entrance as an Army Cadet flier at Brooks Field. At the naval air station, near Pensacola, Fla., the boys were courteously received and helped in repairing damage to their plane. There Lindbergh was privileged to wear an Irving service parachute, an improvement on the older "chutes," that gave him absolute confidence. He received orders to report in March at Brooks Field.

"Roughing It" in Texan Wilds

CHAPTER X.

THE next day conditions were ideal but Klink wanted to go to a dance that evening, and the day after the wind was blowing from the opposite direction. Our remaining time was passing rapidly and we were both anxious to get to California before my return to Brooks Field. If we could get the plane to a larger field six miles south of Camp Wood we would have room to take-off with a full load of gasoline.

One of the town streets was wide enough to take-off from, provided I could get a 44-foot wing between two telephone poles 46 feet apart and brush through a few branches on each side of the road later on. We pushed the ship over to the middle of the street and I attempted to take-off. The poles were about 50 feet ahead and just before passing between them there was a rough spot in the street. One of the wheels got in a rut and I missed by three inches of the right wing tip. The pole swung the plane around and the nose crashed through the wall of a hardware store, knocking pots, pans and pitchforks all over the interior.

The merchant and his son thought that an earthquake was in progress and came running out into the street. He was highly pleased to find an airplane halfway into his place of business and not only refused to accept anything for damages, but would not even allow us to have the wall repaired. He said the advertising value was much more than the destruction.

"Hedgehopping" Again

The greatest damage to the plane was a broken propeller, although from that time on it always carried left rudder. We wired for a new propeller and a can of dope from Houston and in a few days were hedgehopping the mountain tops in true Canuck fashion on our way west.

A Canuck, or J.N.4C is nothing more or less than a Canadian Jenny, and while it is lighter and performs a little better than a Jenny, it is subject to the same characteristic of being able to just miss most everything it passes over.

We passed over the Rio Grande and cut through a corner of Mexico, then landed on one of the Army emergency fields at Pumpville and induced the officer in charge to sell us enough gasoline to continue our flight.

Dusk overtook us near Maxon, Tex., and we landed between the cactus and Spanish dagger west of the town, which consisted of a section house and three old box cars of the type used throughout the Southwest for housing the Mexican section hands.

The section boss was living alone. He was soon to be relieved and stationed in some more populated locality. We spent the night with him and in the morning cleared a runway for the ship. Maxon was quite a distance above sea level and as the air was less dense, an airplane required a longer distance to take-off in. There was a small mountain on the east end of the field and the land sloped upward toward the west. We worked until midday cutting sagebrush and cactus. There was a light breeze from the west and the air was hot and rough. After using three-quarters of the runway the Canuck rose about four feet above the ground but stopped there, and when the end of the runway was passed the wings and landing gear scraped along on the sagebrush.

Downed by Spanish Dagger

As soon as we picked up a little extra flying speed, another clump of sage brush would slow the ship down again until, after we had gone about 200 yards, a large Spanish dagger plant passed through the front spar of the lower left wing. After being cut off by the internal brace wires, it remained firmly planted in the center of the outer bay. We landed immediately and found the plane to be undamaged except for a 14-inch gap in the spar and a number of rips in the wing fabric.

The engineer on a passing freight train had seen us go down and stopped long enough for Klink to climb on board. It was agreed that Klink would go to the nearest place where he could get the material to make repairs, while I remained with the plane. We were 32 miles from the nearest store and as the section boss was leaving that day for his new location, I walked a mile and a half to a ranch house, where I arranged for accommodations until we were ready to fly again.

Klink went all the way to El Paso before he could get any dope and wing fabric. Meanwhile, I spent the day with the plane, and a large part of the night following the ranchers' hounds in their search for wildcats and panthers. They had treed a large cat the night before, while we were staying in the section house, but were unable to duplicate their performance for my benefit. About all I succeeded in accomplishing after following them for hours was to pull one dog out of a wire fence which had caught his foot as he jumped over.

End of the Tour

Klink returned with a can of pigmented dope, two lengths of crating board, some nails and screws, a can of glue, several balls of chalkline, and enough fabric to replace the torn wing covering. We borrowed a butcher knife, a needle and thread, and an ax from the rancher, and set in to make the Canuck airworthy once more. We hewed the crating down roughly to size, cut it into proper lengths with an old hacksaw blade from our toolkit, and finished it off with the butcher knife. In a short time we had constructed a second box splice similar to the one at Pensacola, but a few feet short out on the spar.

We had just enough dope to cover the splice, so the fabric in the outer bay was left undoped; and after we had sewed up the longer rents caused by the sagebrush, we were once more ready to take the air.

It was too near the fifteenth of March to continue west, so we decided to take the Canuck back to San Antonio, where we would finish off the repairs and Klink would continue on to California alone.

(Copyright, 1927, by Charles A. Lindbergh.)

(His reception at Brooks Field, where he went into training for the wings of a military aviator, will be described tomorrow by Col. Lindbergh.)

PAWNBROKERS CALLED FOR AN EXPLANATION

BEFORE POLICE MAGISTRATE

When Emil Petshot, 19, of 428 Orchard place, told how he had pawned loot obtained, he said, by John Martin, 20, of 633 Eureka street, in South Hills robberies, Magistrate A. D. Brandon, in Morals Court, ordered the pawn brokers brought in for an explanation. Matthew Peters, 20, of 61 Beltzhoover avenue, and Joseph Ford, 19, of 118 Banker street, were held in connection with the robberies.

DETECTIVES EXAMINE LOOT

Following the arrest of Petshot and Martin, detectives obtained tickets for much of the jewelry and other stuff that had been pawned and recovered it. Much of the recovered stuff is at city detective headquarters, still unidentified. John Morgan, head of the Pawn Division of the detective bureau, and Detective Peter Connors and Frank Nowicky are shown examining some of the stuff.

HIDDEN STORY SEEN AS SLEUTHS DALLY

By CEDRIC WORTH,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 16.—Gone as completely as Alice Corbett disappeared from Smith College two years ago, Frances Smith, whose parents figure in the social affairs of New York, was sought today in the same way as the other girl who was never found—at random.

No clues that anyone believed in were being followed. Since a description of the 18-year-old girl was broadcast through the press and over the radio a hundred reports have come in from persons who say they saw her. Several of them indicate that she was in several places at nearly the same time and are obviously worthless. All are being checked at the direction of State Detective Joseph Duley and so far have yielded nothing.

On the bulletin board of the room occupied by the "press board," there appeared this afternoon a printed notice. It read:

"Do not give any information to press reporters who are infesting the town. Spread the word to your friends: Not to discuss this case is essential."

Frances Smith came to Smith College last fall, rated as one of the highest scholastically in her class. With her, from the same school, came Miss Joy Kimball, of Milton. They asked to room together.

Because of her exceptional standing in the intelligence ratings, Miss Smith was lodged in Dewey House, counted a signal honor for a freshman.

Miss Kimball lives in Northrop House. The two girls continued to be intimate friends.

The New York girl was artistic, a remarkable musician and studied and played the piano a great deal. Shortly before Christmas, her friends said, she became rather moody at times. The reports of her scholastic difficulties have been exaggerated, and she was only deficient in one or two subjects.

Miss Kimball went to Miss Smith's room Friday and left a note. She received no answer. What the note contained is a secret. Saturday morning she returned to the room of Miss Smith and found the note where she had left it. It was then she reported to the college authorities.

LAWYER QUITS PARTNERSHIP

Attorney Meredith R. Marshall has resigned from the law firm of Rody P. and Meredith R. Rody Marshall said that his brother had decided to quit active law practice January 1, after a partnership of more than 20 years.

Will Tips Cal to Emulate Lindy

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 17.—The President made a good speech. He didn't say that we would do anything for these countries, but on the other hand he didn't say that we would do anything against them. So it was what you might call a conservative speech. He was an hour late arriving here and a half hour late to deliver his speech.

WILL ROGERS

Now here is a tip for him if he is going to be an ambassador. Lindbergh, the best ambassador in the world, is never late. If he says, I will arrive in Siberia at 3:30 at 3:29 he will be there. So no man, even a president, can do better than to follow the example of Lindbergh.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

GIVE LOVELAND FAREWELL

A farewell dinner was tendered Charles D. Loveland of 1329 Denniston avenue, for 15 years local manager of the Truscon Steel Company, at the William Penn Hotel last night. Mr. Loveland has been appointed New Jersey state manager for the Truscon Steel Company, and 45 of his friends, most of them from Bucknell University, attended the dinner and presented him a diamond studded Sigma Chi ring. Mr. Loveland is a member of the Oakmont Country Club, the Pittsburgh Athletic Club, the Stanton Heights Golf Club and the Keystone Athletic Club. A. R. Mathieston and T. A. O'Leary headed the dinner committees.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by Harvey J. Boyle

WE don't know how yours worked out, but that cigar lighter we got for Christmas has just about run its course, and now we're back on matches again. Anyway, there was always a little discouragement about the lighter. It worked all right when we were by ourself, but as soon as we'd offer a light to anyone the machinery clogged up and the friend would always say: "Never mind, I've got a match." It might be a pretty good idea to carry matches with the lighters. One could then strike a match, light the automatic lighter, and then use it.

THE girls who smoke go in for all the fineries of the habit—and they seldom are caught short without a supply of all necessaries. This is proved by the fact that, while it is not unusual for the average man to be stopped on the street once or twice a day by a man who wants to borrow a match, the girls never think of stopping anyone to ask for a light or a match.

The girls have now reached that point where they feel no embarrassment about smoking. Just the other day we were in a tobacco store and a girl came in to complain that the meerschaum pipe she had purchased there was not coloring as the salesman had anticipated in his sales talk.

It is noticed, too, that the girls usually buy a couple of packs of cigarets at a time. In those stores where a slight bargain is offered if more than one pack is purchased the girls constitute a big part of the trade.

THERE are still luncheon rooms in Pittsburgh where the girls are forbidden to smoke. In the same room men pull out their cigars and puff away. The manager of one of these places, however, confides that soon the order restricting smoking to men will be amended to include the girls. On the side of abstaining from tobacco there are very sound arguments, but it is a little difficult to see why there should be any discrimination. A friend of ours combats this argument, however, by saying that if it's all right for girls to smoke it is all right for men to wear ear-rings and bracelets.

It always seems here that the so-called flapper is much-abused in play and story and in the popular conception. We are old enough now to have seen two classes of girls approach womanhood, the class of 1915 or thereabouts, and the class of the present. Insofar as we can discover, there is no particular difference, except this, that the girls of today seem just a little more intelligent. Some of the extreme types of the present day are met up with now, but they had their exact counterparts in previous times.

A FEW years ago there were some who appeared just a little wild and reckless, but if you meet them on the street now you will see them settled and staid with a couple of kids in a go-cart and a couple of others walking alongside. The man in the case follows behind carrying a chip basket filled with groceries. He never missed a dance in the old days and was out every night, but now he smokes a pipe, wears a black derby, and does a little gardening in the springtime when he is not repairing his small car.

THERE are some thoughtless persons who go to a theater and then when the drama begins unfolding begin conversing pretty loudly about the high cost of living or about an unusual incident at yesterday's bridge game. Two such ladies were in a local theater the other evening and a man sitting behind them, after tearing at his hair for a while, at last got up and shouted to the actors on the stage: "Will you actors please keep quiet, I cant hear a word these women in front of me are saying."

Well, maybe it never happened, as you have just thought, but anyway, it's not a bad story. It's better than the one about the two Irishmen which Ted Prendergast tells. You've heard that one, of course. It starts out this way: "It seems there were two Irishmen, Pat and Mike . . ."

MAYOR TO PRESIDE AT M'KINLEY DINNER

The annual dinner of the McKinley Commemoration Society will be held at William Penn Hotel on Saturday night, January 28. Mayor Charles H. Kline will preside. A memorial address will be delivered by Senator David Reed, and following the commemorative portion of the program there will be entertainment of a diverting character.

The committee follows: Mayor Kline, Edward Swindell, James B. Clark, Eugene L. Connelly, William Furey, John F. Casey, George W. McCandless, A. E. P. Kerr and Samuel Jamison.

VISIONS 25,000,000 HERE IN 1977

A. L. HUMPHREY PICTURES CITY 50 YRS. HENCE

Pittsburgh, with a population of 25,000,000, with its wealth and industries multiplied and magnified, with the whole world coming to her gates, wharves and air fields, is the "Pittsburgh of Fifty Years Hence," which A. L. Humphrey, president, Westinghouse Airbrake Company, predicted today in the twenty-first and last lecture in the series before the Chamber of Commerce membership.

Mr. Humphrey pointed to the past as an index to the future. He dared men to halt the dreams of future accomplishments and pointed to Napoleon's failure to adopt Fulton's invention of the steamboat, the laughter with which the world greeted Jule Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," embodied in the present submarine to bear out his belief in a federalized city stretching for 30, 40, 50 and 60 miles by use of the airplane developed to a zenith of its power.

"We cannot prolong our survey of the progress which, beginning when we had the honor of being the outpost of Western civilization, has through a period of 175 years brought us to our present foremost position among cities," Mr. Humphrey said.

GREATER CITY CERTAIN

"To begin with, in our attempt to anticipate the character of our future development, it is my judgment that the first great event affecting the course of our program during the half century ahead will be the establishment of a greater city, whose area will be the same as that of the county. This event, as has been said, is now clearly within sight through the medium of the proposed constitutional amendment for the creation of a metropolitan government in Allegheny county.

"In view of the admitted waste and lack of efficient co-ordination inevitably resulting from the existence of 124 independent municipal governments in Allegheny county, the coming of a metropolitan government here sooner or later seems as certain as anything human can be.

A. L. HUMPHREY

Pittsburgh 50 Yrs. Hence

A. L. Humphrey, President, Westinghouse Airbrake Company, believes "Pittsburgh Fifty Years Hence" will be:

Ten times its present size, with a population perhaps of 25,000,000.

The continued center of the iron and steel industry and the home of a new and greater diversified industry,

A distributing center for Lake and River transportation,

Center of the Coal and Power industry,

Several times as rich and powerful as Pittsburgh today,

A better Pittsburgh.

LOOKS TO WATERWAYS

"Pittsburgh now has a railroad tonnage of 175,000,000 annually with a river traffic of more than 26,000,000 tons annually. Our railroads are energetically enlarging their facilities to meet the demands of our constantly increasing industrial output, but there is no question that it is in the direction of our waterways that we must look chiefly for greater power to compete in the markets with rival cities. The Carnegie Steel Company, the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, and others of our steel producers are already shipping considerable quantities of steel by river to the great Southwestern markets. This traffic is only in its infancy.

"Furthermore, we have within our reach the Great Lakes as well as the Gulf. Just as the river improvements will make Pittsburgh a Gulf port, so the proposed Ohio River and Lake Erie Canal will make it a lake port, enabling us to bring iron ore from the Lake Superior mines at such a material reduction of cost as, added to the natural advantage of our incomparable coal, will make it possible for Pittsburgh to achieve a more decided supremacy in the basic iron and steel industry not many years hence than it has ever had before.

RAIL ELECTRIFICATION

"Within the next decade or two there will undoubtedly be railroad electrification on a large scale which will stimulate one of our most important Pittsburgh industries. The great electric locomotives produced by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will be standard equipment on many thousands of miles of American railways in no distant future.

"When Pittsburgh has become not only the head and center of the vast river commerce for which men of foresight are already equipping their industries, and when we have also diverted a large part of the commerce of the Great Lakes this way, we shall be ready for still another far-reaching stage of our evolution. This next phase, I confidently believe, will be an unparalleled diversification of our industries.

FACILITIES UNLIMITED

"We have the richest coal beds on the continent and an unlimited supply of electric power at lower rates than any other American community with few exceptions, so we must set all economic laws at defiance in order to doubt the development of an enormous diversification of industry within the next generation at this favored spot.

"Iron and steel are manufactured in 31 communities of the Pittsburgh district; glass products in 23; clay products in 16, chemicals in 14, machinery and tools in 12, enameled ware in 11, nonferrous metals in 9, railroad equipment in 8, tin and terne plate in 7, electrical equipment in 5, and paint and varnish in 4 communities.

SEES AIRPLANE ERA

"The world is moving so fast that the manufacture and sale of airplanes at lower prices than automobiles may come in five or 10 years hence. At the same time, our inventive genius may produce a control which will enable the planes to land more advantageously than at present. It will then be possible for people of even the most moderate means to live without inconvenience 30, 40, 60, even 100 miles from the places of their employment. The barriers which now limit the geographical extent of cities will then have disappeared. There is accordingly nothing unreasonable in the expectation that cities covering an area equal to that of a half a dozen of our present counties will be evolved.

"The cities of the airplane era, when practically all able-bodied men will be fliers, will extend over vast areas and will have many shopping and marketing centers instead of merely one or two such centers as now. They may even be so large that city governments will more and more take on what may be described as the Federal form, with the subsidiary or local centers (call them boroughs or what you will) retaining and exercising a large measure of self-government in purely local affairs. Even with this qualification we can hardly be accused of rashness if we forecast cities with populations of 20,000,000 or 25,000,000, and we are warranted in supposing that Pittsburgh will be among the largest of these huge aggregations of human beings, for reasons to which we have already referred.

Whatever the future may hold for this America of ours it seems inevitable that Pittsburgh will gain rather than lose eminence.

"If Pittsburgh 50 years hence were 10 times as large as it is today, and I believe it will be; if it were several times as rich and powerful as it is today, and I believe it will be; if its commerce found a dozen new outlets, and great fleets of vessels from both the Gulf and the Great Lakes were entering our harbor, as I believe they will be; if the vast factory power which has enabled us to hold our present ratio enables us to do likewise in the America of 200,000,000 people which is another generation is to be—if all this came to pass, but nothing more, we might yet be disappointed in the Pittsburgh of 1977.

"We desire all this magnifying of our population, our trade, and our financial power, but we desire just as much that this shall be a better as well as a greater Pittsburgh. There are happy omens that this higher heritage also shall be ours. We are thinking seriously of our human obligations. We are cultivating good will and mutual understanding between employer and employe. We are building great temples and cathedrals of learning to which our young men and women are pressing in a multitude that brings within sight the day when Pittsburgh will be looked to by hundreds of thousands of youth in all parts of the land for the gifts of mind and spirit as eagerly as Israel in the desert looked to the Promised Land."

'BOOZE' HAULING JURY EXCUSE

Considerable merriment arose in Common Pleas Court when Judge James B. Drew asked J. Lallinger of the Hill district why he wanted to be excused from jury duty.

"I do trucking for the city, and am quite busy," responded Joe.

"What do you haul?" queried the court.

"Booze taken in raids."

"Does that keep you very busy?" asked the court and Joe did not know just how to answer that. Anyhow, he was excused until Wednesday and later was excused from duty for all two weeks.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Care For Your Hair With Cuticura Soap

And Cuticura Ointment. Before shampooing anoint the scalp with Cuticura Ointment, letting it remain on over night when possible. Then shampoo with a suds of Cuticura Soap and warm water. Rinse thoroughly. A clean, healthy scalp means good hair.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 21B, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

He needs Help

In a short ten years your boy of ten, now getting the ground work of his education, will be fighting for his place in the world of affairs. In these few years he must above all, develop the faculty of clear expression—and educators have found that the use of the typewriter gives surprising results as the means of increasing a child's ability to express himself.

With the Royal Portable Typewriter typing soon becomes automatic; it saves effort as compared with long hand writing and leaves more time and energy for thinking. The boy thus develops a capacity for expression which, most helpful in his school work, will prove invaluable ten years later.

2 FACE COURT IN MURDER TRIALS HERE

Two murder trials were started yesterday in Criminal Court. Lucio Mendoza, 19, Mexican, of Cherry way, Homestead, was placed on trial before Visiting Judge A. B. Smith of Susquehanna county, charged with the murder of Porfirio Cerbantez, 35, of Cherry way, Homestead, who died from a fractured skull and numerous knife wounds, alleged to have been inflicted by the defendant July 6 last, on the old Brown homestead grounds, Brown's Hill, during a drunken quarrel. Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk represents the state and Attorneys M. Barney Cohen and Viera Edwards represent the defendant.

James Johnson, Negro, was placed on trial before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff of Armstrong county charged with the murder of Ella Bryant, Negress, 35, of 505 Fifth avenue, Homestead. According to state witnesses, the defendant roomed at the woman's house and she was found dead August 19 last in his room in a pool of blood with the door padlocked, death having been caused by knife wounds on the neck. Assistant District Attorney George P. Langfitt and Attorney P. J. Clyde Randall are opposing counsel.

MAKES THREATS, FOUND INSANE

Elias J. Farris, 30, of 4 Mercer street, who threatened to kill Bertha Schmid, of 1519 Hillsdale avenue, Dormont, was committed to the Fairview State Hospital for the Criminal Insane by Judge James H. Macfarlane in Criminal Court yesterday. Dr. Joseph S. Logan and Dr. Joseph R. Gold declared Farris mentally unbalanced. He was arrested January 2, by County Detective Philip Goldberg after uttering the threats and making frequent telephone calls to Miss Schmid, who filed a suit for surety of the peace.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED

Three Negro taxicab robbers last night robbed W. A. Aiken, a cab driver, of $17 after they had held him up at the point of a revolver in Kansas street, Hazelwood.

The three men hired the machine in Forbes street and asked to be driven to Hazelwood. After robbing Aiken the robbers got in an automobile that had followed them, and drove away.

The robbery was reported to the Hazelwood police station.

ESCAPES FIRE WITH CHILD

Mrs. Carl S. Coler, with her year-and-a-half-old daughter, Martha, and son, Roddy, 4, were forced from their home, 565 Ardmore boulevard, yesterday afternoon by a basement blaze starting from overheated woodwork near a furnace. Wilkinsburg firemen extinguished the fire with a $200 loss.

Lily Makes Failure of Cooking, Pat Goes to The Lunch Room

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

LILLY LEXINGTON, spoiled daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor much older than herself. She is fond of him, but realizes she does not really love him the day after she accepts him, when she becomes instantly and violently infatuated with a taxicab driver whom she sees down town when she goes to meet her chum, SUE CAIN. Forgetting all about Sue, she jumps into his cab and he drives her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He tells her that he is going to sell it to finance a piston ring that he has invented, and he and his cab vanish from the streets. Lily misses him terribly, and decides she cares too much for him to marry Staley Drummond. But Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement, and the date of the wedding is set for June tenth. Then, on May tenth, Mrs. Lexington hires a new chauffeur, and it is Pat France. Lily tells her mother how much she cares for Pat, and Mrs. Lexington humiliates him so that he leaves the house. Lily leaves with him, and the next day she marries him. Lily asked to clerk in the Frances' grocery, decides to leave Pat. They make up and she tries to make the best of her position. Lily tries to get her clothes from home. She is invited to a party at the Jetterson's home and sees Elizabeth Ertz. Then Lily quarrels with Mrs. France over some burned biscuits and she and Pat take a little furnished flat of their own and start housekeeping on nothing practically because Pat and Roy have put all their money into the piston ring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

FOR a second Lily thought of the $200 her father had given her, . . . She could put it into Pat's piston ring business, and it might help towards making him rich and successful.

"But I guess it's better to spend it on the things I want for the house," she decided, almost instantly, following him into the kitchenette to get supper.

It was very easy to get. They had bought butter and bread, eggs and coffee, a can of condensed cream and a can of salmon in a delicatessen around the corner.

"I'll make some salmon sandwiches and boil the coffee. I'm a slick cook," Pat offered, knowing that even the cutting of bread and the making of coffee were mysteries to his beautiful partner. "You watch me make this coffee, Sweetheart, and then you'll know how to do it tomorrow morning."

"Yes," Lily answered faintly, picturing herself getting up in the chilly May dawn to boil coffee and make toast.

Pat set the coffee on the gas ring and picked up the can opener.

"Wonderful to be in our home, getting our own meals?" he asked. "'Nobody near us to see us or hear us.'" He hummed the out-of-date melody of "Tea For Two."

"It's wonderful to be in our own home," Lily assured him. "But I'm not so sure the meals will be wonderful if I have to get them. Maybe we'd better find some little restaurant and eat there for a while, eh?"

Pat shook his head. "Maybe you'd better find some little cooking school and take a few lessons, Kid!" he said. "Unless you want the Pat France family to go broke in two weeks. Now, watch me cut this bread so the slices will be as thin as paper."

Lily watched him indifferently. "All right," she said, and yawned behind her hand. This was very tiresome—all this talk about going broke and cooking school and standing over a stove, getting meals.

CHAPTER XXX.

IT is a very poor sort of woman who does not take some interest in the home she comes to, as a bride.

And for three days Lily Lexington actually did try to take care of the little flat on Devonshire street. Just at first she tried to keep the dust from the blue-green breakfast set in a nook off the kitchenette. Just at first she tried to keep the washbowl and the tub in the bathroom spotless. Just at first she tried getting up early, early in the morning, to boil coffee and make toast for Pat's breakfast.

"How's the coffee?" she asked him on the first morning, which happened to be Saturday, when he came from the bedroom in his shabby, neat working clothes, with his hair brushed into place with water and stiff bristles, and his face ruddy from his bath.

"Fine!" said he, before he had even tasted it. But a second afterward, when he had, his face lost its cheerful look.

"Gee, whiz, how much coffee did you put into the pot? The whole pound?" he asked, frowning down at the thick, muddy mixture in the cup.

He carried it into the kitchenette and added hot water to it. But even then he did not drink more than half of it, and he left the blackened toast untouched upon its cold plate.

"You didn't like it," said Lily, looking at him with big gray eyes that were full of reproach. "You didn't eat it." She felt that he was treating her badly because he did not like it, and did not eat it. . . . He should have tried to eat it because she had made it for him.

After he had gone, she went back to bed to cry a little, to look over the morning paper, and to laze away a few hours in comfort.

At noon she got up, spent two full hours bathing, combing her hair, doing her nails, and getting into a thin blue muslin dress.

Then, teetering around on three-inch heels, she set to work to clean up the house.

She started out by airing the bed and laying all the nail files and scissors and combs and brushes straight on her dressing table. There was pale-pink powder scattered around on the embroidered scarf that covered it, and she had a feeling that perhaps she ought to take it off and shake it out.

"But that would take so long to do," she argued with herself, lazily. So she did not do it. She would let it go until the next morning. The living room was dusty, and she flirted a feather duster around it for five or ten minutes. "But what it needs is a vase of flowers to brighten it up," she thought. "And a big box of cigarets and some scarlet and blue glass ash trays."

A few cushions on the couch wouldn't be so bad, either. Big, soft, puffy ones covered with bright-colored silk.

Then, just as she was making up her mind to go downtown to get them, she remembered that today was Saturday and that the bank would be closed as well as most of the stores.

"But I'll go on Monday," Lily decided, as she went through the three rooms with a carpet sweeper and the duster that simply picked up the dust from one place to drop it at another.

On Sunday morning Pat helped her get the coffee ready and did his clumsy best to make toast.

"Don't bother to fix any for me," Lily begged him, standing beside him in her orchid silk breakfast coat and high-heeled mules. "I never want anything but orange juice and coffee, anyway."

On Monday morning she did not get up to get even this.

She heard the alarm clock at 6, when it whirred and shrieked that it was time to get up.

But she pretended to be asleep, and watched Pat get ready for work through her lowered lashes as she lay cuddled against her pillows. . . . How good-looking and nice he was, she thought, watching him pull his khaki-colored jacket on—and it was just too bad he had to start out on an empty stomach.

"Still, it's his own fault," she mused. "It wouldn't have taken him two minutes to put the coffee on and eat some soda crackers, and it's selfish of him not to want me to have my sleep out. . . . Just because he has to keep these barn-yard hours, why should I?"

Why should she, indeed?

"I had my breakfast at the little lunchroom around the corner on Boyle street," Pat said to her that night when he came home. "They packed me up some sandwiches for lunch, too—the waitress in there. It's quite a nice little place."

After that he ate breakfast there every morning, and nothing disturbed Lily's beauty sleep until the sun came pouring through the blinds with its high-noon radiance, rousing her and telling her that the day was going.

Then she would get up, spend a long time on making herself look fresh and pretty, and go to the delicatessen next door to the restaurant for some things for supper. Things that were ready to eat, mostly—potato salad, cans of baked beans in tomato sauce, five-cent pies filled with apple sauce or custard, canned spaghetti.

On Wednesday she got up early—at half past ten—and left everything just as it was, and went down town to buy things she needed for the house. Her father's money lay in the bottom of her bag, and on the way down town in the Boyle street car, she made a list of the things she was going to buy—a cook book, a smoking stand for Pat, a reading light, a lot of fresh flowers, the sofa cushions and an electric percolator and toaster.

She was filled with the best intentions in the world when she got off the car at Philborn square.

She went straight to the bank and cashed her father's check first of all.

Then she started up Albermarle street towards the furniture store where she had always gone to buy prizes for bridge parties—Dutch silver cigaret boxes or boudoir pillows or silk and lace.

On the way she had to pass the little specialty shop where most of her wedding clothes had come from—Angouleme's.

Angouleme's was a French shop that specialized in those simple little hand-sewn dresses that cost a small fortune—in lingerie made of the finest silk and linen and embroidered by French peasant women—perfumes and powders in boxes and bottles almost as rare and expensive as the things they contained.

This morning there was a single dress in the little window, and Lily drew her breath in sharply as her eyes fell upon it.

"It was made for me," she said to herself, the instant she saw it, and she was right. It was a queer shade of gray that was almost green—the color of water with the dawn-light shining on it—the color of Lily's eyes.

Beside it, in the velvet-lined window, stood a pair of watered silk slippers that had been dyed to match it, and a pair of stockings of the same mysterious clear color.

As Lily stood looking at it someone came up and stood beside her. "Yes, that IS a very catsy little dress!" said a gay voice, and there was Sue Cain, all in white and looking as fresh as paint.

She laughed at Lily's startled look. "I'm sorry if I scared you. You going in here?" She linked her arm in Lily's arm, and without intending to go, Lily found herself walking into the shop.

It never seemed quite so luxurious and restful a place as it did today, with its deep-piled carpet, its gilt-framed mirrors, and its little smoking stands drawn up beside brocaded arm chairs. They knew how to do things at Angouleme's!

The clothes in the shop never had seemed to be so lovely before, either.

"Look at this dress, Lizzie," said Sue. Sometimes, when she wanted to be funny, she called Lily "Lizzie."

She held up a flowered chiffon trimmed with bands of pale green silk. "It's called 'Day in June,'" she ran on, "and I certainly think I'll get it for Ann Barney's garden party." All the dresses in Angouleme's had especial names.

Something like a sharp pain went to Lily's heart. . . . Ann Barney having a garden party and not asking her! All the old crowd getting together right along for their good times, and leaving her out! People she had known since her private kindergarten days. People she had danced with, gossiped with, gone around with all her life. . . . The only people she knew really.

"But even if they did start asking me places, I couldn't go," she said to herself. "I haven't anything really decent to wear—nothing but those few dresses of mine that have been washed and are all faded now."

A saleswoman came up to her as she sat, waiting for Sue to try on the "Day in June" dress. "Could I show you something?" she asked in the velvety voice that seems to belong to all saleswomen in expensive shops the world over.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-DOOdah at this point—I ACtually AM, because I HONestly had no IDEA NOisy was in LOVE with me, my dear! Can you BEAR it? But I mean it's an ABsolute FACT because I SUDdenly disCOVered it toDAY for the first TIME, my dear, and I HONestly couldn't have been more surPRISED and BAFfled, sort of, but I mean I don't s'pose you ever can TELL about these QUIet types, my dear, because you never know what anybody like that's THINKing, DO you? Well, ANYways, of course THOUSands of people have TOLD me ARab was in LOVE with me and all, but I ACtually hadn't the vaguest idea of it until I was telling him toDAY, my dear, about how I'd kidded ARab into thinking I was all SET to start a comPANionate MARriage with him at this point, but apparently NOisy, my dear, had HEARD that it was PERfectly SErious because, my dear, he HANDed me this odd ePISsle which he'd CAREfully WRITten, my dear, and it was ACtually the MOST lugubrious NOTE I've ever peRUSED in all my born DAYS, my dear, because it ended up 'good-BYE for EVer' and all that sort of tripe, do you know what I mean? ACtually, my dear, I was comPLETEly BAFfled and discomBOBulated because I'm TERribly FOND of NOisy, my dear, and of course I KNEW he LIKED me and all, only I hadn't any IDEA that he would practicably commit SUIcide if he thought I was going to marry anybody ELSE, my dear, and I'm SIMply THRILLED to DEATH about it because I think it's all so roMANtic, sort of—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Eleanor Lincoln Wins a Point Over Mary Harrison by Coquette Strategy.

ELEANOR LINCOLN'S ruse to enable her to sit beside Noel Veritzen upon the front seat of her car was as transparent as it was impudent. While I have not the "flapper figure," yet I can still lay claim to the adjective "slender," while Mary's illness had left her thin enough to win the championship of least pounds in a weighing contest of reducing young "moderns." Miss Lincoln's own slim, willowy figure made her little speech as to crowding Mary and me in the back seat a laughable thing, if there had been anybody to laugh at it.

But there was no mirth in the faces of any of us. Noel Veritzen was still so filled with resentment against "Mr. George Logan Jackson" that he patently found it hard to be civil to the young woman who breezily and confidently took her seat beside him. Mary's lovely young face openly showed the childish, jealous fury at Miss Lincoln which was sweeping over her, although she uttered no word and was palpably fighting for poise, while I was annoyed and puzzled by the bizarre incidents in which we just had been participants.

The young chatelaine of The Larches, however, showed no trace of embarrassment and confusion, although I guessed that beneath her exterior she was fighting both emotions. But she laughed and chatted with Noel all the way to the farmhouse, as if nothing troubling had ever come near her, tossing just enough conversation in Mary's direction and mine to acquit her of the charge of discourtesy.

She was keen enough, however, to comprehend the strain which her bizarre actions had put upon our courtesy, and when Noel had driven her car into the farmyard and we had alighted, she resisted all my polite importunities to stay for luncheon.

"I'd love to," she said, "but it is impossible. Aunt Anne is not very well. Indeed, I am quite concerned about her. And I must get back to her. I only ran up this morning to see if you people would come over to luncheon, and when your car became disabled I offered my services."

"For which we are extremely grateful," I said, trying to infuse a proper warmth into my voice.

"Can I not persuade you to come to luncheon, anyway?" she asked, but there was a subtle something in her tone which told me that she actually feared our acceptance.

"I am sure you would not wish a domestic cataclysm in our household," I told her, smiling. "That would be the certain result of my preferring any other luncheon to Katie's upon my homecoming."

"How fortunate you are to have so devoted a servant," she said, and then, without further demurring, she drove out of the yard while I gave myself up to my small son's rapturous welcome.

"I was a 'nawful good boy,'" he told me vociferously. "Aunt Katherine said I was. I was going with Jim to meet you, and then when the car didn't go and Miss Lincoln said she'd go after you, I wanted to go just terrible, but Aunt Katherine and Granzie said I couldn't, that I must wait here for you, and I didn't cry nor anything. I was just as good as I could be."

"And mother is so proud of you," I said, kissing him, while my mother-in-law struck in caustically.

"It didn't matter whether he was good or not. He wouldn't have stirred a step into that car with that fool girl driving, unless it had been over my dead body. She just got that car Saturday night, Jerry Tiger says—it couldn't have been very long after you people left, and she's been driving up and down these roads like mad ever since. She takes Mary and that young Veritzen with her every time they'll go, although it's my private opinion that she only asks Mary to go along because she can't manage to get the young squirt away from Mary's side long enough to ask him by himself."

A Gift for Lost Fat

Men Will Pay

Make This Bargain

Make this bargain with your husband—$10 per pound for lost fat. You will find him very glad to agree.

Then combat that excess in this easy, pleasant way. Take Marmola prescription tablets—four a day—until the weight comes down to normal. No extremes in exercise or diet are required, though moderation helps.

Marmola is based on a discovery made by scientists some 20 years ago. It is based on wide research and thousands of experiments. It aims to increase in the body a substance which turns food into fuel and energy rather than into fat.

The complete prescription appears in every box. Also the reasons for what it does for beauty, health and vitality. This to avoid any fear of harm and to tell you just why it acts.

People have used Marmola for two decades—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others, and the use has spread. Now you can see the results wherever you look. Slenderness prevails today, fat is the exception.

Go try Marmola—the help which has brought to so many new beauty, new health and vitality. Watch the results in your own case. Then, when you get what you desire, tell others what it did.

Order now before you forget it. Do that in justice to yourself. You cannot afford excessive fat in these days.

High Blood Pressure A Constant Threat

High blood pressure is nature's warning that health and life are breaking down. Don't disregard it.

Take steps at once to rid your system of the deadly body poisons that are being absorbed into the blood stream, affecting every vital organ, increasing blood pressure and threatening apoplexy.

Stimulate all organs of elimination so they can throw off these poisons. Every morning before breakfast, take a drink of pleasant, sparkling Lithurie Salts and thus assist your kidneys, liver and bowels to do their body-purifying work.

Because it contains no sodium chloride or sugar, Lithurie Salts is harmless—yet its valuable, natural mineral salts combined with fruit acids of lemons and grapes are so effective that they are guaranteed to show quick beneficial results or you can have your money back. Get Lithurie Salts of the May Drug Co. or of any other good druggist today and remove the constant threat of high blood pressure.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma, or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Secret of Good Digestion

How Anybody Can Have It

Most all forms of indigestion and stomach trouble are due to or accompanied by acid, which causes fermentation and the formation of gas. Correct this condition and all pain and distress almost instantly disappear. For this purpose the best thing known is to take 4 or 5 Bi-nesia tablets or a teaspoonful of Bi-nesia powder. This instantly neutralizes the acid, stops the fermentation and formation of gas, heals the stomach lining and permits painless, normal digestion to follow naturally. Get a 50 cent package of Bi-nesia tablets or powder from your druggist today. Nothing else will relieve your indigestion as quickly and surely.

RAN AWAY AT 13; GLOBE TROTTER SAW 3 WARS

Recalls Trials of Life as Soldier of Fortune; Prospected in Alaska

HEALTH SHATTERED IN STRANGE CLIMES

He Lays New-Found Vigor to Fleischmann's Yeast; Plans New Exploits

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — To Thomas M. Stapleton of No. 480 Pine Street, this city, life is just one darned expedition after another.

"I left home when I was thirteen years of age," Mr. Stapleton explained, in recounting the details of one of the few lives of adventure that have not yet found their way into a book. "I have been a soldier of fortune ever since. Have circumnavigated the gray old globe several times. Lived in every country of the planet, civilized and otherwise. Fought in the first Mexican revolution, the Boer War and the Great Adventure with the Canadians—five and a half years.

"I have also prospected in Alaska, traded in the Orient and packed the 'bluey' in Australia.

"Sometimes you run across ideas in strange places. It was while on a trip to Australia, in the sunkist city of Sydney, that I met a young friend of mine, who told me a health secret that has meant more to me than a fortune. I was at that time—in fact I had been for years—a sufferer from constipation on account of the irregular habits necessitated by my wandering life. My friend's advice was simple. 'Eat some Yeast every day,' he said. 'It's all you need.'

"Impressed by my friend's own buoyant health and clear complexion, I decided to follow his advice on my next return to the States.

"Well! I found those little cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast kept me in the very pink of condition for my arduous life. Constipation to me now is like the Dodo—extinct!

"Sometimes in outlandish places it has been impossible for me to procure Fleischmann's Yeast—I called those days the dark days. I might add that when I start out on a journey now I take along ... country in the ...

Shunned by Girls, Finds New Way to Popularity

RICHMOND, Va.—To Wesley J. Pierce, Yeast was the means whereby he rose from social ostracism to popularity.

"I could hardly shave," said Mr. Pierce, explaining that his difficulty was caused by an outbreak of unsightly skin eruptions. "Subjected to embarrassing remarks, avoided by the opposite sex, is it any wonder I developed a grouch?

"Several people suggested cures, but no good resulted from them. Finally an old friend who had himself eaten Fleischmann's Yeast for his health urged me to try it.

"I started with a purchase of two cakes. Next day I bought more, and from then on ate it regularly. In three months I was rid of my skin trouble. My skin is smooth and easy to shave. The result?—my present happy disposition."

SURPRISED WHEN HE WON, DECLARES 'HUMAN CORK'

Winner of Atlantic City Ocean Marathon Was Plasterer When Discovered by Famous Trainer

TAKEN OUT OF WATER WINNER AFTER 13½ HOURS

Credits Yeast for His Remarkable Endurance; Training for New Honors in 1928

NEW YORK, N. Y.—William Erickson of this city, champion endurance swimmer, known as "the human cork," has admitted that when he won the Atlantic City Ocean Marathon last summer he was no less surprised than the numerous world-famous swimmers against whom he was competing.

The Atlantic City swim was the first event of the kind in which Erickson had taken part, he revealed. A plasterer by trade, living at No. 1930 Lacombe Avenue, the Bronx, he was discovered by George H. Maines, famous swimming trainer, by whom he was persuaded to go into training for the Atlantic City and other long-distance events. As Erickson himself told it recently:

"I was finally persuaded to get into some of the important endurance contests. I took a chance and tried the Atlantic City Ocean Marathon. Seventy-one entrants—what chance did I have? Well, I got the big surprise of my life when I was pulled out of the water after 13½ hours—the winner!"

Two weeks later Erickson came in second in the 32-mile Lake George Marathon, and in August finished third in the Wrigley Toronto Marathon out of a field of perhaps the greatest long-distance swimmers ever assembled—277 of them, including three famous English Channel conquerors, three Catalina Channel swimmers, the world champion ... an ...

'Miss Kansas City', Winning Over 200 In Competition, Tells How It's Done

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—According to Miss Marguerite Jordan, Atlantic City beauty contest winner, girls aspiring to beauty honors should remember that the basis of good looks is health.

"The strain of a solid week's judging at Atlantic City and the month of constant travel preceding it was terrific," she declared, "wearing in the extreme on one's vitality and complexion.

"Fortunately, however, I had eaten Fleischmann's Yeast regularly for some time on my physician's advice. I had been nervous and underweight, due probably to poor elimination. My digestion was bad too. But thanks to three cakes daily of Yeast I soon became regular again. My nerves quieted, my weight righted itself, my complexion cleared and my eyes brightened.

"I won over two hundred girls, thereby winning the right to represent Kansas City in the Atlantic City contest. I received the unanimous vote of seven judges for beauty of face and form. It was the happiest day of my life.

"I arrived in Atlantic City with the required weight, a complexion the judges termed 'peaches and cream,' and an unlimited amount of pep and vitality which I certainly needed. Thanks again to Yeast, I finished third in the finals at the National Bathing Beauty Contest in Atlantic City.

"Naturally, I cannot praise Fleischmann's Yeast too highly. It will always be a regular part of my diet."

Her Parish Duties Had Become a Burden

CHICAGO, Ill.—Mrs. F. A. Lindenmyr, wife of a Chicago pastor, states that about a year ago she complained to her husband of feeling ill.

"My appetite had vanished," she explained. "My sleep no longer rested me, and I would rise in the morning feeling sluggish, tired—only half alive. And I was troubled with constipation.

"My housework grew irksome and even my social activities and duties in my husband's parish turned from a pleasure to a grievous burden.

"I was doubtful when my husband suggested Yeast. After eating it for a time, however, I became aware of feeling better than I had in many months.

"Well! I continued to improve right along. My constipation left me, the color returned to my cheeks. I began to feel active and strong—was able to do my work again without any special effort. Of course Fleischmann's Yeast plays a prominent part in our family's diet now."

Would Broadcast Good Fortune to World

TACOMA, Wash.—Herbert C. Ford, radio announcer of this city, is broadcasting overtime these days. The subject is his newly recovered health.

"Broadcasting," broadcasts Mr. Ford, "requires enthusiasm and a mind constantly alert. My own enthusiasm was, however, considerably dampened by boils. For eighteen months I was afflicted—and I mean afflicted, too! At one time I had twenty-eight boils on my legs.

"I tried every cure suggested—no results! At last a kindly soul told me of Fleischmann's Yeast. Thinking that it could at least do me no harm, I decided to give it a trial. I ate it over a period of several months.

"Picture my relief as the boils gradually disappeared! And—here's the point—they haven't returned."

Mr. Ford added that he also finds Fleischmann's Yeast helpful in the mountain climbing in which he occasionally indulges. "If you're not in the best physical shape," he said, "it's a good idea to slay off the glaciers."

51,267 LETTERS PUT YEAST INTEREST AT NEW HIGH PITCH

Analysis of Year's Mail Reveals 435 Different Questions on Yeast Were Asked

7 QUESTIONS ASKED A THOUSAND TIMES EACH

Answers Given by Medical Advisers From Latest Scientific Findings

Making public the results of an analysis of all letters received in 1927, the Fleischmann Company announces that in 51,267 letters, 435 different questions were asked about Yeast. Of these 7 questions were asked a total of 1,000 times each.

These 7 questions, with the answers given by their medical advisers, are as follows:

Q. What is Yeast? A. It is a plant—as fresh as any vegetable. Each cake of Fleischmann's Yeast contains billions of these tiny, active Yeast plants.

Q. How does it work? A. Headaches, skin trouble, indigestion—such ailments usually come from an unhealthy intestine. Yeast softens the intestinal wastes, stimulates the muscles. The intestine grows cleaner, more active. Elimination becomes more regular, complete.

Q. What are the scientific facts behind Yeast for Health? A. In ... past thirty years Yeast as a ... health has been the ...

$10,000 in Prizes

Two $1,000 Prizes and 774 other awards

Cash prizes for your letters about Fleischmann's Yeast! . . .

Already hundreds of thousands of people have told us what Yeast has meant to them. Relief from constipation of years' standing. Release from its attendant ills—headaches, indigestion, pimples, boils. Happiness again. Energy. Life at its best! Many of these true stories are recounted on this page. Read them. Then sit down and write us your experience.

Write freely, naturally, in your own words, telling why you decided to eat Yeast and what it has done for you. Or, if you prefer, simply write on why you believe Fleischmann's Yeast is better than medicines.

You may write on either of these subjects, or on both. For the 776 best letters we will give $10,000 in cash.

Don't miss this unusual opportunity. Save this announcement. Write us before February 20 and follow the rules:

Follow these rules carefully

[1.] This contest is freely open to all—employees of the Fleischmann Company excepted.

[2.] You may write on Subject No. 1 or No. 2—or on both subjects. If you write on both, use a separate sheet for each.

[3.] Letters should not exceed 200 words in length.

[4.] Use white paper of standard size—8 1-2 x 11. Use only one sheet (both sides, if necessary).

[5.] Print (do not write) your name, complete address, date and the subject on which you are writing at top of sheet. If you write on both Subject No. 1 and Subject No. 2, use a separate sheet for each, with your name, address and the subject at top of each. Use pen and ink or typewriter.

[6.] Sign name at end of letter. If you write on Subject No. 1 ("Why I decided to eat Fleischmann's Yeast") you must have a witness—someone who knows your story to be accurate—sign his or her name under yours.

[7.] Mail in stamped, sealed envelope to the Fleischmann Company, P. O. Box 1251, City Hall Station, New York, N. Y. All reports must be received before midnight, Feb. 20, 1928.

[8.] Prizes will be awarded by a board of impartial judges, none of whom is a member of the Fleischmann organization.

[9.] No letter entered in this contest will be used for advertising purposes without your express permission.

[10.] We cannot undertake to answer any correspondence relating to the contest. But announcement will be made about the middle of March, by mail, to all entrants, giving names of prize winners.

[11.] Any letter that does not follow these rules will have to be disqualified.

SUBJECT No. 1
"Why I decided to eat Fleischmann's Yeast and what it has done for me"

388 prizes for the best letters on this subject:

1st prize	$1000
2nd prize	$500
3rd prize	$250
2 prizes of $100 each	3 prizes of $50 each
25 prizes of $25 each	100 prizes of $10 each
255 prizes of $5 each

If you write on this subject be sure to cover the following points:

1. What made you decide to eat Fleischmann's Yeast for Health?—Learning of the benefits derived by someone else? The advice of a friend or physician? Or just reading about it?
2. Describe the condition of your health before you started eating Fleischmann's Yeast, and tell how your ills interfered with your work or happiness.
3. How did you eat Fleischmann's Yeast (that is, just plain, or in water or milk, etc.), and for how long have you eaten it?
4. How was your health benefited by eating Yeast? What difference did these benefits to your health make in your daily life?

SUBJECT No. 2
"Why I believe that Fleischmann's Yeast is better than Medicines"

388 prizes for the best letters on this subject:

1st prize	$1000
2nd prize	$500
3rd prize	$250
2 prizes of $100 each	3 prizes of $50 each
25 prizes of $25 each	100 prizes of $10 each
255 prizes of $5 each

If you write on this subject be sure to cover the following points:

1. Why is the continued use of pills or cathartics harmful?
2. How does Fleischmann's Yeast keep the intestinal tract clean?
3. What common ailments are generally associated with constipation?
4. Why is it important that Fleischmann's Yeast be eaten regularly every day?

... is surely going strong ... Yeast," Mr. Stapleton added. "A lot of people have talked to me about it. I always tell them what it has done for me, and explain how I eat it—four cakes a day, one before each meal and another just before retiring."

... It was—and ... ve, too. For in not more ... than a month my headaches and listlessness were gone. In three months I was well!"

"I started with two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day," explained Miss Brown, "dissolved in milk, and later increased it to three cakes every day. It wasn't more than a month before my headaches had disappeared. But I am still eating my Yeast in order that I may stay well."

... But in spite of my hardy childhood life," she said, "I became run down and suffered from constipation. Every winter, too, I would have bad colds. What with the traveling, the backstage draughts and irregular hours, matters became worse and worse as time went on. Finally I was advised to give up the stage entirely and take a complete rest. But I couldn't do that!

"Then, three years ago, I was persuaded by something I read in a magazine that what I needed was Fleischmann's Yeast. I began eating it every day, dissolved in milk. Constipation ceased to bother me and the next winter I went through the whole season without a single bad cold.

"To-day traveling fails to hold any terrors for me. I am one of the healthiest people about!"

... way to keep in good ... was advised by my trainer and other outstanding swimmers I met to eat Fleischmann's Yeast regularly. I began eating a cake before each meal, and nibbled it on the side. It is a sure aid to digestion, too. I even carry it with me while traveling."

George Maines, his trainer, substantiated all Erickson had said, and declared that he is looking for his protégé to do big things the coming season.

Erickson is a member of the Board of Governors of the International Professional Swimmers' Association, organized last September in New York City. The purpose of the organization is to foster interest in swimming throughout the world as an international sport.

... amples of ex... We attribute some... of this—our freedom from colds, for example—to the fact that we follow my doctor's advice and eat Yeast as a preventive measure."

Mrs. Wright likewise credits to Fleischmann's Yeast the good health of her five-year-old daughter. "For a time I was worried," says Mrs. Wright, "because my daughter suffered from constipation. Fortunately, however, a friend suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. So I started giving her some every day, dissolved in warm milk. (Later, she enjoyed eating it just plain, from the cake.)

"The Yeast overcame her trouble entirely and she has since known nothing but perfect health. This year she entered school with a high average for her physical condition. But I continue to give her Yeast daily, as insurance for future years of health and happiness. To-day she is so well that laxatives are practically unknown to her.

"Her present good health is reflected in her sunny disposition."

... the value of Yeast as ... therapeutic agent is to-day definitely established.

Q. Will Yeast make me fat? A. No. Any gain in weight will come from the other food you eat—not from the Yeast. One Yeast cake contains fewer calories than a soda cracker. If the amount of food you eat when well tends to put on weight—watch the calories!

Q. Does it cause gas? A. No. Where gas has formed it is usually because Yeast has been eaten on a full stomach without sufficient flow of gastric juice. For best results it should be eaten on an empty stomach—half an hour before meals, or between meals. In this way, the Yeast is digested the same way as any other food.

Q. How long should I eat it? A. That depends on the seriousness of your condition. No really chronic condition can be corrected overnight. Most cases are helped in three or four weeks, but to give Yeast a fair trial you should eat it at least sixty days. Because it is a food, and not a medicine, it should of course be eaten regularly. It can be eaten as long as you like—it can never hurt any one.

Q. How should Yeast be eaten? A. Just plain, or in hot or cold water, or any other way you like. Eat three cakes daily, one before each meal or between meals. For constipation drink it in hot water before each meal and at bedtime.

... out.

... out a stroke of luck came my way! The pitcher on the baseball team was buying Yeast from me daily at the commissary. I began eating it myself—three cakes regularly every day—and in three weeks I was better. My boils are clearing up fast—and I am still in college, thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast.

"I am only one of several here at college who to my knowledge have been immeasurably helped by eating Yeast."

Conquers Ill Health; Lands World Record

VANCOUVER, Wash.—Winning over 9,000 other insurance salesmen in a nation-wide competition, Mr. Arthur G. Berry of this city landed the world's record for his company, in spite of the handicap of ill health with which he started.

"I soon found I was in no fit condition for winning a record," said Mr. Berry, "and that I would have to do something about my health. I was run down—felt lazy, pepless.

"A friend advised me to try Fleischmann's Yeast, and I began to eat it—three cakes a day, dissolved in hot water. Thanks to Yeast, my old pep returned. I no longer felt sluggish, tired. I landed the world's record for my company.

"Needless to say, I continue to eat my three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, and as I go about preaching the gospel of life insurance I also sing the praises of Fleischmann's Yeast."

... the abundant energy with ... I have been blessed.

"When a friend urged upon me the wisdom of eating Fleischmann's Yeast I was frankly skeptical. But I tried it and most thankfully at the expiration of only two weeks, as the improvement in my digestion resulted in more restful sleep than I had had in years."

Judge Jean Norris is a member of the American Bar Association and the New York County Lawyers' Association. At the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915 she was Chairman of five group juries in sociology. She received a medal and diploma for distinguished services. Her writings on sociological and legal subjects are widely known.

Tastes Carloads; Loses Appetite

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—When Louis J. Scherrer of this city returned from the World War he found himself unfitted for his former occupation of tasting and judging carload lots of perishable foodstuffs.

"As a result of a gas attack at Chateau-Thierry," he explained, "my digestion and appetite were impaired. Naturally it was hard to taste and judge foods under those conditions. The result was that the accuracy of my tests was endangered.

"Finally a friend of mine urged me to try eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I started with one cake a day, and later increased it to three. To my surprise and delight I got relief from my stomach troubles.

"My work is better and I am enjoying real health again."

Aviator, Landing in Hostile Terrain, Subsists 3 Days on Uncooked Fowl

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Alfonso Gomez Izquierdo dates his aversion to chickens from an experience he had as an airman in the Mexican Army, when, forced to land in enemy territory, he stove off starvation for three days with the aid of an uncooked fowl.

"For three years," related Mr. Izquierdo, at his home at 232 Fourth Avenue, this city, "I served under Carranza and Obregon in the Mexican regular army. You can imagine the kind of life we had to lead—food generally far from the best and gulped down in a hurry.

"One time when we were sent out against the rebels my plane developed engine trouble, and I was forced to land in territory held by Villa. The only food I could find was a chicken, which I ate, uncooked. It lasted three days.

"Well, that chicken proved my undoing, for shortly afterwards my stomach went back on me and I began to suffer from indigestion and constipation. My face broke out in large, ugly blotches. I took physics, but they didn't help, except temporarily.

"I had an aunt living in the United States who had heard of Fleischmann's Yeast and had herself been benefited by eating it. She urged me to give it a trial. I couldn't get it regularly in Mexico, but, even so, could notice it helped some. Then, two years ago, when I came to this country, I began to eat it in earnest every day.

"I had no more trouble with indigestion or constipation. My face cleared right up."

Students Keep Him "On Needles," Says Flying Instructor

DENVER, Col.—The instruction of "pilots to be" calls for strong nerves, according to Oscar R. Haneter, aviation instructor of this city. "These young fellows keep you 'on needles' all the time," he said.

"Finding myself run down in health," he added, "I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast. It keeps me in fine shape—fit for long hours of strenuous instruction work and selling."

Mr. Haneter is assistant sales manager of a Western aircraft corporation. He received his training at Kelly Field.

Swimming Teacher Warns Of Indigestion Danger

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—"One of the worst things a swimmer can have," stated C. E. Batcheller, swimming instructor of this city, "is any form of stomach trouble. I know—from my own experience."

Mr. Batcheller is Director of Aquatics of a prominent Minneapolis club. He said: "After the World War I was constantly troubled with indigestion following a slight phosgene gas poisoning. My muscles grew flabby and I lost the excellent physique that resulted from military service.

"My stomach kept me in constant discomfort, and my muscular weakening interfered with my work, for as manager of my department I, of course, have to exercise strenuously in the pool.

"It was Mrs. Batcheller's success with Fleischmann's Yeast that prompted me to give it a trial myself. I have eaten it now with more or less regularity for a year. To-day I eat my meals without fear of indigestion. My weight is normal. And I again have the necessary muscular energy for my lifeguard and instruction duties—not to mention frequent week-ends of camping and fishing with Mrs. Batcheller."

Why Prizes for Letters on Yeast?

Friends of the Fleischmann Company have asked, "What is your purpose in offering prizes for letters about Yeast?"

We wish we could take these friends behind the scenes and let them read a few of the thousands of letters received in previous Yeast for Health Contests . . . "I am so glad of this opportunity to write you"—"Prizes? Prize enough for me is the benefit I've derived from Yeast"—"For months I've meant to tell you what Yeast did for me."

And so on. The men, women, children who have been benefited by Yeast are sincerely grateful. Yet often they hesitate to write us about their experiences. It is to encourage them to tell, frankly and openly, what Yeast has meant to them that we offer prizes for their letters.

A prominent doctor recently declared that 90 per cent. of the patients who come to him suffer from constipation—an appalling percentage!—and, further, that fully 85 per cent. of other common ills result, directly or indirectly, from faulty intestinal elimination.

It is hoped that this and other Yeast for Health Contests which may be announced from time to time may help to awaken the public to the dangers of this common ailment and to increase knowledge of the best way to combat it.

Cathartics, far from correcting constipation, ultimately only aggravate it. It is to direct attention to this fact that in this year's contest additional prizes are offered not only for letters of actual experience with Yeast but also for letters on why Yeast is better than the continued use of dangerous habit-forming medicines. This is a subject upon which any one may write.

Trains Thousands; Finds Constipation Prevalent

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—In examining the health of over 1,000 young people every year, Mr. Le Roi C. Snow of the Missionary Home of this city reports that "by all odds constipation is the most common ailment among them—showing itself in an unhealthy skin and general inefficiency.

"I had long been attracted," Mr. Snow added, "by the stories of others' experiences with Fleischmann's Yeast. Being myself unable to eat many foods without resulting stomach disturbances, I decided to give Yeast a trial. I took 3 cakes every day, followed by several glasses of water.

"After a time I had no further signs of indigestion and was again able to eat the forbidden foods without discomfort.

"As a result of my own experience I began suggesting it to others. It has proved an inexpensive and helpful means of correcting constipation, indigestion and skin disorders."

Health Shattered Braving Andes' Perils, Lives in Misery for 8 Years

WINNIPEG, Man.—Refusing to be separated from her husband, a mining engineer, Mrs. J. D. Craigie of No. 922 Lorette Avenue, this city, sailed to join him at his copper mining camp, 14,200 feet above sea level in the Andes Mountains of Peru.

But her will was greater than her strength, she said. Ten days after reaching camp she fell seriously ill. Taken back to the seacoast, where she underwent an operation, later she returned to the mountains, only to fall a prey to sickness again.

"My only relief from the agony of the stomach and intestinal troubles from which I suffered," she declared, "was to try to divert my mind from my suffering with the help of daily horseback riding. For over a year I fought my stomach complaint.

"When I returned to New York I was a complete nervous wreck. I tried tonics, had X-rays taken—to no avail. For eight years I suffered, until my hair was fast turning grey. My face was pinched. Life was an encumbrance. I had almost given up my case as hopeless—was afraid to eat anything but bread and butter and milk puddings—when I bethought myself of Fleischmann's Yeast.

"I took it regularly, three cakes a day, dissolved in milk. And in one month I was eating all my old favorite dishes. To-day I am a different person. My weight is normal. And I am congenial to live with. Had I heard of Fleischmann's Yeast sooner I am sure I would have been saved untold misery."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

AFTER forty, it seems to be a choice between having your face or your husband "lifted."

Single blessedness may have its charms; but, somehow, there is heart-warming satisfaction in being able to look upon a man and say, "A poor thing, but mine OWN, withal!"

* * *

HELEN ROWLAND

No matter how much she may hate him, it always hurts a woman to see some other woman getting along harmoniously with the man she gave up as "hopeless."

The "companionate wife" may be the leading lady in a man's life; but she'll be surprised to discover how many "understudies" will be waiting around to jump into her role, the moment she weakens.

To a woman, last summer's little romance is a precious pressed flower in the book of memory; to a man, it is somewhere in the class with last year's almanac.

The Prize Husband is not necessarily either a Romeo or a Santa Claus, but the sweet unselfish soul who will get up quietly and burn his own toast and let his own coffee boil over, while his wife finishes her beauty nap.

There are times when man secretly suspects that woman was sent into the world for the sole purpose of thinking up uncomfortable things for a man to do.

* * *

Every woman is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of sex-appeal.

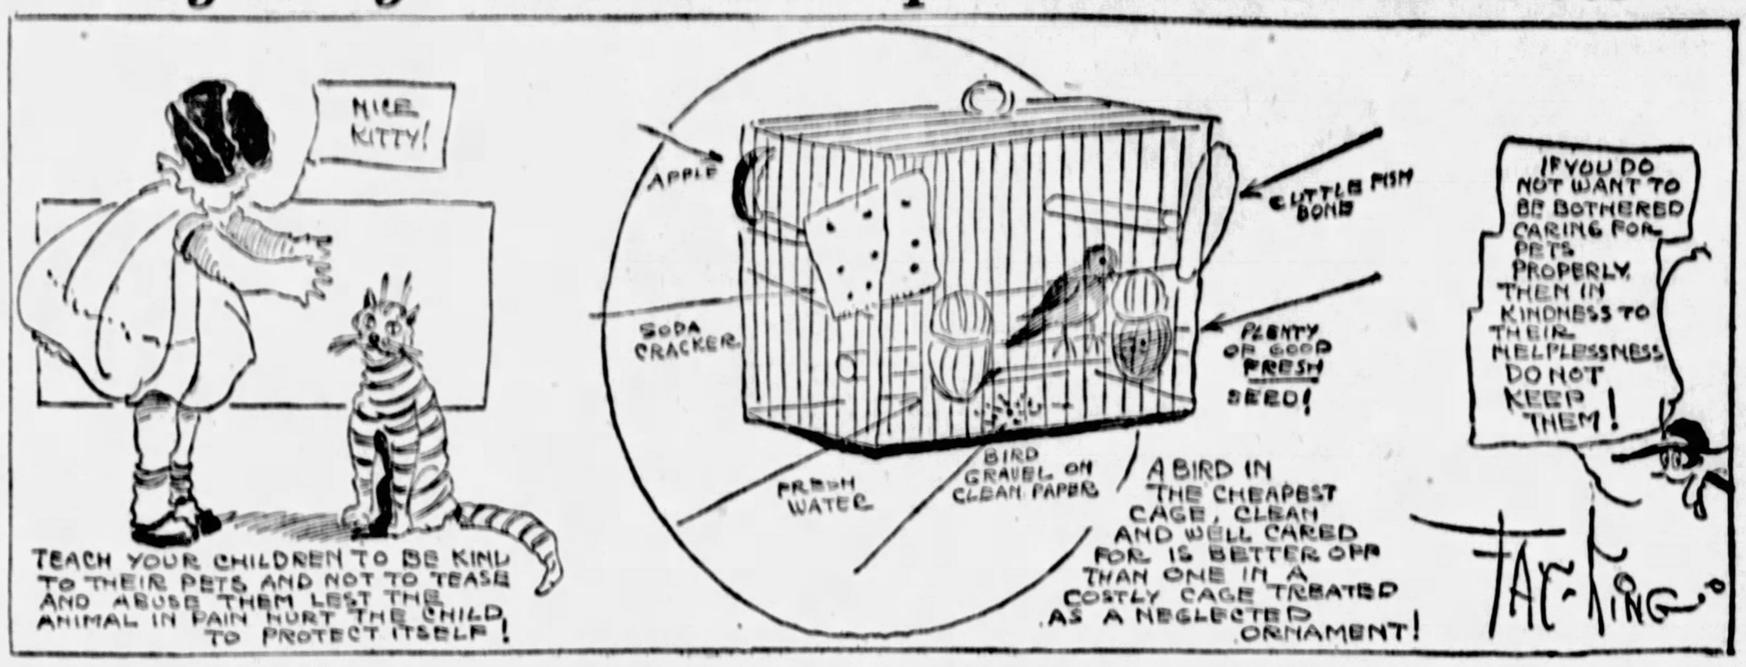
Fay King Pleads for Proper Care of Home Pets



By FAY KING

If someone has given you a live pet be sure that you treat this little creature that has come into your care properly. If you do not wish to be bothered with it, then give it to someone. But above all do not neglect it.

Feed it regularly and water it properly.

Do not depend upon the children to take care of a pet. It's well to teach them responsibility and encourage them to attend to their pets, but also keep an eye on them so that in punishing the children for their neglect the lettle pet does not suffer.

Children mean to be kind, but often in holding kittens or puppies unknowingly give them pain, or in playing tease them beyond endurance.

They sell many beautiful fancy bird cages now, but the main point is, whether the cage be ornate or of plain white wire, it must be kept clean.

Change the drinking water two or three times a day. Clean the feed and water cups and wash the perches, for they will make the birds' feet sore if not spotlessly clean.

Fresh paper every day.

A bird MUST HAVE SAND. This bird gravel grinds its food in its craw.

In buying bird seed, be sure to open a few of the seeds yourself and see that the meat in them is fresh. Otherwise your canary will starve on bad seeds as you would on bad walnuts.

Give him a soda cracker. They also like a few flakes of rolled oats (uncooked), apple and lettuce. And they must have cuttlefish bone.

Don't hang your bird in a draft. They take cold easily. Cover the cage at night. Give him a bird's bathtub of water every other day, but remove the tub as soon as possible and give fresh paper, because the dampness will give him a cold.

Only those who have owned pets know how dear they may become. It is a pleasant duty to care for them properly and one should do this or not keep them.

Worn-Out Persons Easily Contract Disease

IT does not pay to get run down. To permit yourself to work or worry yourself into ill health is a great mistake. There are many things that may happen to the weakened and worn out individual. One of them is eczema.

DR. COPELAND

Loss of sleep, overwork, worry over business—any one of these will contribute to the production of eczema. The skin is likely to give evidence of the disturbance.

The persistent eating of an article of food that has been known to cause skin irritation, may produce after a while a very obstinate eczema. Indeed, we cannot afford to overlook the possibility of food poisoning whenever we are dealing with a skin eruption.

If the skin is inclined to become irritated, it must be as well treated as the highly polished surface of a fine piano. Some skins are so sensitive that the very soap and water must be viewed with suspicion. You can see that soaps might disagree, but it is a fact that hard water will disturb some tender skins.

In such cases boiled cistern water, or distilled water will give you relief. Sometimes it is enough to soften the water with borax.

Try different soaps till you find one which agrees with your skin. Then stick to that variety. Of course you will have to go through the same testing process if you move to another locality, where there is a different water.

If the skin is sore and cracked, you might try oatmeal instead of soap. When I was a little boy in the country and got my hands all chapped in the winter, my mother used to give me oatmeal instead of soap. It serves the same purpose and agrees with the most tender skin.

The most commonly met form of skin trouble is "eczema" or "salt rheum." The first sign of it is redness of the surface somewhere. This may come from rubbing or chafing the part. Little blisters form. When these break the fluid dries on the surface, giving the appearance of bran-like deposits on the skin. As this dried substance gathers it may become a thick crust in time.

There will be lots of itching and burning. The itching is intolerable.

It is a remarkable fact that persons with high blood pressure are likely to have eczema. When this symptom is met in a person past middle life it is well to find out what the blood pressure really is.

Of course, you will correct the diet, making every effort to find the irritating food, the particular one at fault. The intestinal tract will be kept clean.

The skin must be treated very gently. The crusts may be removed by a poultice made of boracic acid and starch. This paste applied to the surface will soften and permit the removal of the crusts.

Baking soda and water will help the itching, but the surest relief lies in hyposulphite of soda. A handful in a pint of water makes the proper strength. Mopped on the itching parts relief comes almost at once.

Your doctor will direct the internal medication. You can help him a lot by taking exercise, sunlight and fresh air. Plenty of sleep and rest are needed, of course.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, January 18

The art of conversation is beautiful places is the art of holding one's tongue.—ERVINE.

THIS day's planetary configurations are rather negligible as to any definite leadings. In a fair way business will move, and the things of printing, publishing and promotion may engage the attention, as the trend is toward writing and speaking, with a tendency to volubility. It is a good day for clearing up neglected correspondence.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly lively year but with proclivities toward writing and speaking. It may bring progress through promotion by means of printing, publishing or correspondence.

A child born on this day should be versatile and talented with a leaning toward literary pursuits or to public speaking, in which calling it may have much eloquence.

Johnson & Johnson
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., U. S. A.

MODESS is the new hygienic convenience for women. Compared with the ordinary styles of today it is years ahead in comfort. It is softer and more yielding. It is safer without being any more bulky. It is disposable in the easiest possible way. In every respect it is better and yet is inexpensive. Fifty cents for a box of twelve.

MODESS is more comfortable because the gauze covering has been specially softened and because all edges have been gently rounded away. It is safer because its newly invented center is more absorbent. It is conveniently disposable in water. You will find it ready-wrapped in plain paper in any drug or department store.

MINE BENEFIT SEATS GO LIKE "HOT CAKES"

"SELL OUT" FOR DAVIS SHOW FORECAST

Seats for the midnight show to be given at the Davis Thursday for the benefit of the poverty-stricken women and children in the mining villages of Allegheny county are going like the proverbial "hot cakes." There is slight doubt that the house will be "sold out."

Notwithstanding that the entertainment is to be given at an hour when most persons are in bed, the attraction of "a ten dollar show for a dollar," coupled with the fact that the proceeds are to be used for a philanthropic purpose that commands nearly everyone's sympathy, has proved irresistible. Arrangements are already being made for another midnight benefit show for the miners' families at the Sheridan Square Theater Thursday night of next week, with entirely different acts.

The liveliest interest in the benefit was displayed by the actors and actresses appearing in Pittsburgh this week, on their arrival in the city yesterday morning. Stars and chorus girls, topliners and others not so important, all want to participate in the show, not because they will be paid for it—for they will not—but because of their desire to help the cause. Acts from a dozen theaters will be presented—the Nixon, Pitt, Alvin, Davis, Harris, Sheridan Square, Loew's Penn, Loew's Aldine, Gayety, Liberty, Schenley and Grand.

The actors are contributing their services gratis, and the Theater Managers' Association of Pittsburgh is bearing incidental expenses; so the box office receipts will be turned over in their entirety to the miners' families. All seats for the show are reserved, and there is only one price—$1.

The need of relief is urgent. Thousands of families in the mining camps are living in cheerless barracks. Sixty families are to be evicted this week from their homes at Curtisville mines Nos. 1, 2 and 3 for non-payment of rent. Sixty-four families are to be evicted at California, Pa.

Pittsburgh bakery workers have arranged to supply 3,000 loaves of bread weekly to the striking miners. Local Unions Nos. 44 and 252 of the bakery workers have agreed to tax their members $2 each a month, and Unions Nos. 12 and 204 will tax their members $1 each a month, for the purpose. This will provide 5,000 loaves. In addition, the international organization of bakery workers has pledged a weekly contribution of 10,000 loaves, of which 5,000 will be baked in Pittsburgh for the local miners and 5,000 in Cleveland for the Ohio miners.

Describing conditions in the mining camps, Samuel Lindenbaum, a member of the bakers' relief committee, said:

"If all of you would have a chance to visit these communities and look at these destitute children—the way they run to the truck and beg a piece of bread—I am sure you would gladly give a half week's wages for them."

William Collins, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, with headquarters in the Keenan Building, complimented the Sun-Telegraph on its work for the relief of the suffering in the mining camps. He said he desired to extend his congratulations on the support that this paper has given the midnight benefit show.

FIRE ENGINE HITS HOUSE

When the steering apparatus failed to work, the pumper of Engine Company No. 47, driven by Thomas O'Malley, crashed into the sidewall of the residence of Thomas Maloy, 1260 Franklin street, last night.

The company was answering an alarm for a chimney fire in Nixon street. O'Malley was attempting to turn from Fulton street into Franklin street, when the engine jumped the curb, crashed through a fence and struck the Fulton street side of the house near the corner. A section of the wall and foundation was torn out and the engine was damaged. O'Malley and John Smith, who were riding on the engine, were unhurt.

THE report that the Yank payroll for the coming campaign will skyrocket to $300,000 is not a very good guess, unless a matter of thirty or forty thousand is considered pin money by the boys who do the guessing. While it is true that Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig will draw down almost "one hundred grand" for their season's work it is also a fact that 15 lesser lights on the club will be paid considerably under $100,000, and the remaining eight stars will not collect $100,000.

THE Yankees, however, will be far and away the highest-priced club in baseball. In the National League the Giants, Pirates and Cubs are big payers. The Dodgers were heavy dispensers of coin up until the past two seasons.

ROGERS HORNSBY is the highest-paid player in the National League, Rajah being out in front by a large margin in this respect. Eddie Roush, Frank Frisch and Dazzy Vance perhaps are nearest to Hornsby, but the Texan is said to be drawing down an amount twice as great as the stipend of any of the others.

The contest was one of the cleanest played here this year, only a single penalty being called.

Arbour, Mackay and Keats worked well in the second period, and Chicago held the advantage, advancing the puck into Pirate territory repeatedly. Worters was struck in the face with the puck on a hot shot from Mackay, and took time out for attention.

Amby Moran, the new Chicago defense star, caught the fancy of the crowd with his aggressive way.

McCalmon received the only penalty of the game when he tripped White.

The Blackhawks speeded up trying to tie the score in the third period. In a flurry about the Pirate cage Worters was drawn out behind his net and Mackay slipped the puck in the cage. Offside had been called, however, and the referee called for a face off at the line while the crowd howled.

The Pirates' reserve forwards, Drury and McCurry, furnished some fireworks with fast skating, opposed to the Hawks' youngsters, Miller and McCalmon, as the game drew to a close. The puck went back and forth from one end of the rink to the other with both teams having scoring chances.

Plaid After Initial Win

By JESS CARVER.

A BAND of some 15 or more athletes slipped quietly out of the city about noon today wearing the plaid and kilts of Carnegie Tech and bound for the precincts of Washington and Jefferson College, where tonight, they will engage the Presidents in a Big Four basketball game.

No sounding cymbols or blaring trumpets accompanied the departure of the Tartans, for they have not yet won a basketball game, losing all four games played, to Pitt, West Virginia, Geneva and Davis-Elkins. And in playing at Little Washington, they will be invading territory in which they have ever been defeated. Tech has not won a basketball game from Wash-Jeff at Washington in the 15 years' competition lets on the schools.

For all they have taken four successive wallops on the chin, the chances of the Tech boys getting a victory tonight are better than would at first be imagined. Both Hitchcock and Harpster, veterans from last year's varsity, were in uniform for the Pitt game for the first time this year. They went fairly well, and should go better tonight. Hugh Crum and Capt. White will complete the starting lineup this evening.

W. & J. FAVORITES.

Wash-Jeff, victorious over both Bethany and Allegheny, does not figure to be as strong as last year, when Andy Kerr had Jeff Carlin and Woodty Wild in the lineup, a pair of stellar and experienced players. However, the Red and Black does look better than the Tartans, especially on their own floor, and a Plaid victory tonight will be considered an upset.

Another ball game that I'd like to see this evening will be played at Meadville, featuring Westminster and Allegheny in a non-Conference struggle.

The United Presbyterians, who are as strong as any team in the district, with the exception of Pitt, have won two games in the Conference, losing Geneva and Thiel and have lost one non-Conference contest, the opening game of the season, to Grove City. Tonight they face a test equal in strength to the Crimson game, for the Methodists need a victory to restore the loss of spirits, suffered in the Wash-Jeff and West Virginia defeats last week.

BILL'S ABSENCE FELT

Westminster is a powerful attack five, with a defense that has as yet failed to function properly. Allegheny always has a good defense, and last year flashed an attack of great power and deception, built around Avalon Bill McClurg. Bill, you know, is the lad who came here with a banged-up knee and a broken hand last year and beat Pitt. He is through at Allegheny and they have found his place hard to fill.

Grove City also plays tonight, meeting Thiel at Greenville. The Crimson will be favored over the Lutherans, as is only fitting and proper. All Thiel lacks, however, to make them strong Conference contenders, is a big center. But they don't have one and as a result, must suffer.

The Dukes will start on their Eastern invasion this evening. Chick Davies and John Holahan chaperoning a squad of nine players to Washington, D. C., where the Red and Blue play American University tomorrow and Catholic U. Thursday. And then they hike to Emmetsburg, Md., for a game with Mt. St. Mary's Friday.

der" in the way of syndicated newspaper and magazine articles, sold unquestionably on the strength of his reputation as the world's champion sprinter, and under the cloak of hypocrisy that a coat of whitewash from the amateur authorities affords.

IF THERE is anything more misleading than radio broadcasts of big boxing bouts, it has not yet come to light. I listened to Graham MacNamee's ringside account of the Sharkey-Heeney bout last Friday night and kept tab on the rounds from his description of the action.

TOM HEENEY.

At the finish my score sheet showed the first and fourth rounds even and all the others of the first 10 going to Sharkey. Heeney had an edge in the last two rounds. Then, imagine my amazement when the announcement was made that the decision was a draw, with MacNamee's comment that this seemed to be a fair verdict because Sharkey was the better boxer and Heeney had been the aggressor. I had to read the newspaper accounts the next day to find out how the bout really had been fought.

LONG strings of consecutive knockout victories may or may not mean anything. Some years ago, Tom Gibbons flopped over something like 29 heavyweight set-ups in a row in a barnstorming campaign. And then he was beaten by Harry Greb, a middleweight, in a bout in New York. Now there's a great commotion because George Godfrey, the Negro heavyweight challenger, has rendered some 18 or 19 stiffs a little stiffer and he is hailed as a real contender, although he hasn't met a really good man in more than a year, or since he lost to Jack Sharkey. And Fort Worth, Tex., boasts a young boxer, Kid Dula, who scored his twentieth consecutive knockout victory the other night.

Ever hear of Kid Dula before? Neither had I. Nor of the palookas he's been toppling over.

JACK DEMPSEY has resumed light training in preparation for his 1928 campaign, working out in his own gymnasium in Los Angeles. He has been drilling only lightly and will not indulge in any hard work until something definite in the way of a bout looms up. But he'll be back for another big cut of the swag during the summer.

JACK DEMPSEY.

As he began his workouts he told a reporter:

"I know I'm not as good as I used to be, but I still can lick a lot of the heavyweights around the country. I won't fight anybody unless I am sure I can win; I'm not coming back to be punched around. Of course, I want another shot at Tunney. I'm not satisfied he's the better man after what happened at Chicago."

SOMEBODY asked Dempsey what he thought of the present crop of challengers. He said he figured they'd eliminate one another and a new crop would be with us within a couple of years.

PAULINO.

He expressed disappointment over the failure of Paulino Uzcudun to develop as he once gave promise of doing.

"It took him seven rounds to knock out Pat Lester the other day," Dempsey said. "Why, Lester can knock himself out in less time than that!"

EXTRA!! Sherlock Holmes Quits Hornsby Case; Admits Defeat! EXTRA!!

—By GEORGE E. PHAIR—

OLD Sherlock Holmes, the marvelous detective,
Was seated in his diggings, wan and pale,
All night he had pursued his great objective
And only found a blurred and tangled trail.

"I'VE found the bloke who stole the Rajah's jewels,"
He muttered with a deep and hopeless groan,
"I've fought and won a lot of snappy duels
With all the greatest plotters ever known,

"I'VE trailed the Sultan's diamond studded gaiters,
I've solved the mystic murders of the gorse,
I've learned why suckers bet on selling platers
And why the Prince of Wales falls off a horse,

"BUT why, O why, was Rogers Hornsby traded?"
His plaintive query ended in a sob,
And with his gallant spirit worn and faded
Old Sherlock Holmes gave up the hopeless job.

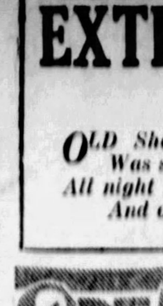
SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

WITH all the smokescreens that have been thrown up about the strange transfer of Rogers Hornsby from the Giants to the Braves, there comes to hand a story from a man closely identified with the inside workings of baseball which is said to reveal the real reason for the switch of the star to a tail-end club.



JOHN McGRAW.

According to my informant, Charles Stoneham, owner of the Giants, and John McGraw, manager of the club, have not been hitting it, and Stoneham has been plotting to get rid of McGraw, the man who laid the foundation for the big baseball business in New York, and that under the original plan McGraw was slated to go to the Braves and Hornsby was to succeed him as manager of the Giants. McGraw got wind of what was going on and brought pressure to bear to protect himself, with the result that Hornsby was let out.

Great as has been the hue and cry over the transfer of Hornsby, imagine the consternation that would have resulted had McGraw been shunted into the background instead!

There may be nothing more to this narrative than there has been to some of the other explanations of the Hornsby trade, but anything is possible when big baseball business begins to clean house.

CHARLEY PADDOCK, in training for his third Olympic campaign, causes somewhat of a stir by declaring in a signed newspaper article that Bill Tilden, Bobby Jones, Helen Wills and Johnny Weissmuller in reality all are pros because they have violated the spirit of the amateur code by profiting from athletic reputations. He cites the newspaper work of Tilden and Miss Wills and the alleged real estate operations of Jones.

All Paddock forgot to do was to include himself in the list. He also has been getting away with "mur-

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—The Pittsburgh Pirates prepared today to leave for home, where they meet the Ottawa Senators Thursday night, in fine spirits, following their 2-1 victory over the Blackhawks here last night.

The Buccos won their fourth game of the season and the second from the locals by taking advantage of an early lapse on the part of the Blackhawk defense to tally twice in the opening period. The Hawks pushed over a score in the second period.

The reserve forwards of the Pittsburgh team stole the scoring honors and furnished the biggest kick of the game. The first goal came when White laid a pass in the mouth of Chicago's goal. McCurry was there and whipped the puck past Gardiner. McCurry also scored the second goal, snaring a loose puck and lofting the disc high over the Hawk goalie.

Mickey Mackay raised Chicago's

NOTES of the BOXERS

GEORGE GEMAS, the Philadelphia heavyweight, who gave the local fans a couple of thrills in bouts with Emmett Rocco and Garfield Johnson, boxes Jack Gagnon, the New Bedford, Mass., Frenchman, in a 10-round windup at Providence, R. I., tomorrow night.

Joe Glick boxes Lope Tenerio at Cleveland tonight. Dave Adelman meets Willie Smith of South Africa in the semi-final and Frank Gardino of Hazelwood boxes Johnny Jewell in a preliminary.

Jackie Rodgers, Negro flyweight of the North Side, continued to show a punch when he stopped Bobby Burke, of Reading, in four rounds at Johnstown last night. Jackie is about the only flyweight in these parts who does hit with knockout force. Phil Scello whipped Johnny Vivio in a prelim at Johnstown.

Wee Willie Davies registered a hit beating Ernie Peters, the Indian, at Chicago last night, according to news reports.

MOON KLINZING and his group of basketball celebrities, known as the McKeesport Cyclers, will present another high-class attraction in McKeesport next Saturday night when the Philadelphia American League passers invade the Tube City.

The Cyclers, composed of former Morry stars, are sparing no expense in bringing the leading attractions of the country to the Tube City for games and as a result fans in that section are being treated to some high-class basketball.

The Philadelphia team includes in its lineup Ted Kearns, George Artus, Al Keilett, George Glasco, Tom Barlow and several other prominent Eastern stars. Their appearance against Lefty Saunders' crack aggregation should pack the McKeesport Y. M. C. A. floor. The Philadelphians boast three victories over

KILLING OFF BASE HITS

Many a batter moans when, after hitting a hopper over second base, he sees the fleet form of Sparky Adams flit across the diamond and into the path of the potential hit. Adams is a smart, tireless player who gets a lot of satisfaction out of his work. This study of Sparky is typical of him when he is in action. He is expected to fill the second base hole in the Pirate infield and may prove to be the factor that will bring a pennant and world championship to Pittsburgh this year.

"STILL IN RUNNING," JIM MULLEN SAYS

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—In spite of the detailed plans of Tex Rickard for promoting two championship matches featuring Gene Tunney this summer, Promoter Jim Mullen remained unconvinced today that he had been brushed out of the heavyweight championship picture of 1928.

Mullen repeated that Both Tunney and Manager Billy Gibson had promised Gene would fight under his management this summer in Chicago and would not sign for any other matches before February 1, the zero hour under the terms of the previous contract with Tex Rickard.

"I am taking Tunney at his word," Mullen said.

"I am not convinced that Gene has signed with Rickard for two fights, for I have every reason to believe Tunney would have consulted with me before he took any such action."

TEX TO GO SOUTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Tex Rickard will leave tomorrow for Miami, Fla., where he will confer with Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, on fight plans for 1928.

Yanks Buy Slab Ace, Get Him in 1934

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(INS.)—"Ivory futures" is the newest stock on the baseball mart.

John Prudhomme, a youthful pitcher who twirled two no-hit games for Toronto last season, has been purchased by the New York Yankees, but—for delivery in 1934.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, who always has a weather eye open for the future despite the present strength of the world's champions, figures that the no-hit pitcher ought to be just good enough for the Yanks in six years.

Sparky Keeps Fit

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

"COULDN'T feel better and I expect to have a great year," Earle (Sparky) Adams, new Pirate second baseman, writes to the Sun-Telegraph from his home in Eastern Pennsylvania.

Sparky, you will recall, is supposed to give the Bushwhackers added strength in the infield as well as to be a valuable man in one of the top positions of the batting order.

Wright and Adams are expected to show Forbes Field patrons the best action around second base since 1921, when Walter Maranville and Wright set a new style by their whirlwind play around the middle of the diamond.

Adams is capable of hitting .300 and he is one of the best baserunners in the League.

Sparky is known to National League pitchers as a "pest." A little fellow who swings a mean bat, Adams tries the patience of the best control chuckers of the league. He is so small he forces the pitcher to "come right down the alley" with his offering, or he waits for a walk.

HUNTER

You don't read as much about Sparky Adams as you do about Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch, but the new Pirate second-sacker is a consistent star who is ever ready when needed. The accompanying picture of Sparky shows him at his home in Tremont, Schuylkill county, Pa. Adams believes in outdoor activities to keep in shape for the hard play of the summer, so he does some hunting. Here he is presented in his hunting garb.

SOCCER by NEWS TOM BIRKS

THE walking off the field stunt staged by the German Sport Club at Heidelberg on Sunday was a sad blow to the followers of the team, who seemed dazed by the suddenness of the action following the ordering off of Zetel and Buck Donnell by the referee.

The management of the Heidelberg club should have the sympathy of the fans in the muddle that arose. It was the first time this season that a large crowd had attended the national champions' game, and then, after 23 minutes of play, the crowd was stunned when the Meisenberg outfit decided to leave the field.

We are not debating whether Referee Donoghay was right in ordering the players off or not, but the thing to debate is the action of the German club in not giving the fans a run for their money. The officials of the German club took a rather belligerent attitude after the game. The writer has always stated that the German club is one of the finest clubs from a scientific standpoint of soccer in the district, and it is admitted that its players take plenty of knocks. But while admitting that Donnell should have been put out, on the left back of the

HUDKINS MAY GET GO WITH CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Joe Dundee has signed a contract to defend his world's welterweight title against Ace Hudkins or the logical contender, Matchmaker Jess McMahon of Madison Square Garden announced today. McMahon has notified Thomas E. Donahue, president of the National Boxing Association, of this action.

McMahon proposes to stage the match as soon as the New York State Athletic Commission lifts the ban on Dundee. The national boxing body served notice that Dundee, Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight titleholder, must defend their crowns within 30 days or vacate the top of their respective ranks.

Donahue also was informed that McMahon was ready to match Walker against George Courtney, Oklahoma cowboy. In addition, McMahon said he was prepared to put Sid Terris, New York lightweight, with Mandell in a title affair.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Johnstown—Jackie Rodgers knocked out Bobby Burke, 4 rounds; Steve Paulsen won on foul over Linn Jordan, 4 rounds; Phil Scello defeated Johnny Vivio, 4 rounds; Ike McFowler won by technical knockout over Evan Gustafson, 1 round.

At Little Rock, Ark.—Milton Manguna defeated Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, 10 rounds.

At Council Bluffs, Ia.—Jimmy Malone won on foul over Frankie Kohles, 2 rounds.

20-SECOND WIN FOR DELANEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Knockout victories had boosted the stock of Jack Delaney and Paulino Uzcudun in the heavyweight market today.

Delaney furnished an unusual feat in ring performances last night by landing a single haymaker on Sully Montgomery's chin in 20 seconds of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

At about the same time, Uzcudun eliminated Ed Keeley from the picture in little more than two minutes of mauling in the second round of another scheduled 10-rounder. The referee stopped the bout.

It was five minutes before Montgomery was revived with the aid of restoratives.

HOME TOWN TO HONOR WELCH AND ROBERTS

Parkersburg, W. Va., the home town of Gibby Welch and John Roberts, Pitt football stars, will honor them with an homecoming banquet Saturday night, according to word from the city today. It will be a festive occasion attended by numerous notables.

At the same time, New Castle will banquet Alex Fox, the other guard, who was elected at the Pitt banquet last Saturday night to succeed Welch as captain in the fall.

DUNLAP GOLF CHAMP

DEL MONTE, Cal., Jan. 17.—Gibson Dunlap, former Michigan and Illinois state golf champion, added the California intercollegiate golf championship to his list by defeating Allan Moser, of the University of Southern California, 5 and 4.

ARKANSAS LAGS AS DEAL IS REPORTED CLOSED

STOCKS LIFTED AS PRESSURE LIGHTENS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Selling pressure was lifted from today's stock market and prices moved up moderately. Trading, however, showed a marked reduction in volume, less than 1,000,000 shares changing hands in the first three hours. Except for the reported struggle for control of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which was without market effect, there were no business developments of importance during the day.

Renewal of call money at 4½ per cent had a tendency to dampen bullish enthusiasm, although money brokers reported that the undertone of the market was easy. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Cushman's Bakery, which broke 7½ points yesterday, recovered the loss on a single transaction today. Fidelity-Phoenix Insurance jumped nearly 6 points, American Zinc preferred 4½ and Cluett Peabody, Midland Steel Products preferred, Purity Baking B, Greene Cananea Copper, Continental Insurance, Mathieson Alkali and Goodrich advanced 3 to 4 points. Most of the standard industrials, such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors and American Smelting advanced a point or two. Hudson Motors ran up nearly 3 points.

National Tea and Houston Oil were among the few weak spots, breaking 3 and 4 points, respectively.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Corn developed greater activity and strength than wheat today in the early dealings. Scantiness of country offerings of corn, together with unfavorable weather, as well as bullish Argentine advices, tended to stimulate corn buyers. Opening at ⅛@¼c decline to ⅛c advance, corn soon made a decided general upturn.

At noon corn was ⅛c to ⅜c net higher and wheat a shade to ⅛c up.

Wheat and oats were also firmer, wheat starting at ⅛ to ⅜c gain and then hardening a little more.

Provisions held steady.

Direct cables from Buenos Aires today stated that the new Argentine corn crop is deteriorating from lack of rain. It was pointed out that although this report was rather at variance with word from other sources the fact should be remembered that Argentina is a big country. Meanwhile, Liverpool dispatches told of a general scarcity of Argentine offers of corn for early shipment and said Argentine shippers were advancing prices rapidly.

An upward trend shown by wheat values here much of the time today was associated with strength of the Liverpool wheat market and with fears expressed in some quarters recently as to the extent of damage by winter killing to domestic wheat. Official reports from Kansas said there was a dearth of moisture especially over the western third of the state and that a large acreage now appears dead.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The cotton market opened barely steady today at a decline of 1 to 11 points under renewed liquidation, and local and southern selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and yesterday's talk of a slightly easier spot basis in the South.

The decline to 18.62 for May contracts brought in some trade and commission house buying or covering, and the market held fairly steady at rallies of a few points from the lowest at the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported there had been some trade calling and covering in Liverpool, but that prices were lower under liquidation of London and continental accounts. A larger inquiry for cotton cloths from the Near East and South America was reported in Manchester.

How Butcher Boy Founded Billion-Dollar Business.

By B. C. FORBES

AN ambitious 16-year-old butcher boy, anxious to leave home, was given $25 by his father and told to start in business locally. He paid $19 for a fat heifer, skillfully cut up the carcass, loaded the cuts into his father's wagon, sold the meat and made a profit of $10.

The business thus launched has become the largest of its kind in the world, with sales totaling as high as a billion dollars a year.

How has this been achieved?

Let the butcher boy's oldest son, now head of the enterprise, tell.

THE boy was Gustavus F. Swift, originally of Cape Cod and later of eastern cities before he migrated to Chicago, where he was the first to slaughter cattle and ship the beef east.

According to his son and successor, the one-heifer business was developed into a one billion business by a combination of very pronounced characteristics exercised by its founder. Thus:

The original Swift had strong pioneering instincts.

He was an out-and-out individualist.

He habitually rose at 5 o'clock, did a day's work before most business men had arrived at their offices, kept at it all day and devoted practically every evening to conferences or business problems.

First mastering his retail business, he equally mastered each new development launched and, even after his packing business had reached unprecedented magnitude, he could show any man in the organization how to do his job.

He was an irrepressible expansionist, never satisfied unless rapidly extending his operations and ramifications.

Always, he showed those he put in charge how to handle their job, even going to London and staying several months to teach the retailers in Smithfield market at 3 in the morning how best to cut up and display his products.

Cleanliness was a fetish with him, and woe betide anyone caught perpetrating or permitting the slightest untidiness.

"Literally he saved more time than any other man I have ever known," records his son.

Length of working hours meant nothing to him and he inculcated this same attitude in his workers. When one of them once asked him what time it was, he replied, "You'll know when the whistle blows."

He was a stickler for the strictest honesty and earned such a reputation that when a million dollar dispute arose between his concern and a shipping company the head of the line called from Britain, "We will submit this to the personal arbitration of G. F. Swift."

He was a hard driver of men.

He didn't believe in giving praise but indulged freely in "bawling out" delinquents. He felt that they should be flattered that he took the time to bother with them because, as he once explained to one, if a man didn't have the making of something in him, he (Swift) wouldn't waste a moment on him. "I can raise better men than I can hire," he frequently declared.

Time and again on the ragged edge of bankruptcy, he always contrived somehow, to keep his word, even though to do so he sometimes had to borrow every dollar his workers possessed and once saved a threatened crisis by hurrying to a man whose establishment had burned down and inducing him to hand over the $100,000 insurance just collected.

One of his mottoes was "never admit you're licked."

Another was "you never made any money on business you didn't do," meaning that it was poor business not to have a complete line of products on hand.

His horror of waste led him to pioneer in utilizing by-products and it was he who coined the phrase, "now we use all of the hog except his grunt."

He was constantly poking his nose into sewers to see if any fat or grease was being carried away.

It was his hate of waste which led him to move his headquarters from the east to Chicago because, he reasoned, it was a crime to ship whole animals all the way to the east when 60 per cent of the carcass was inedible.

Says his son: "He schooled himself to do everything absolutely right and he expected the same of everyone else."

His powers of observation were such that he was eternally asking managers and superintendents questions they couldn't answer.

THESE glimpses, given by Louis F. Swift in "A Yankee of the Yards," a biography of his father, confirm the old saying that every great business is but the lengthened shadow of one man. Some of the hardy Yankee's methods, especially in handling men, would not fit into modern conditions, but sufficient of the original Swift's outstanding characteristics have here been summarized to show how and why he succeeded in creating so impressive a business monument.

BUGS BAER Says

THE municipal art commission wants ten thousand bills to preserve the oil paintings of former mayors of New York.

Ten grand is a lot of gravy to spend on oil pictures of any kind of mayors. The money is to be utilized in cleaning and varnishing the faces of the ninety-nine mayors who have swiveled around in the executive chair.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

We don't object to them cleaning the faces of ninety-nine mayors. But we fail to see how a mayor's face can be improved by varnishing.

Instead of spending ten grand to repair the paintings we should boil those frescoes down for the oil.

Then we should put those ninety-nine empty frames out in Central Park and allow citizens to look through them at some real scenery.

It's too late now to see what Bill Brady looked like in 1847. Bill was New York's mayor during that year but he was Bill Brady again in 1848.

His predecessor was Andy Mickle, who served through 1846 and then got ballot-shy. In later years Andy got the impression that voting booths were haunted.

Caleb Heathcote was a fairly good mayor around 1711 but his portarit fails to prove it. They had to put a windshield wiper on Caleb's picture to keep the moisture off his chin.

Bill Peartree was a pip. Bill got into office in 1703, but the paw rolls of 1704 have him listed sadly as a gold-star politician. He was gone.

Ide de Reimer didn't have any better fortune in 1700. He hung around twelve months and then went to that bourne from which there is no returning of complaint blanks.

If you never heard of Francis Rombouts that makes us even. If you think that his pan would glisten better with a new coat of shellac put an X in the municipal waste paper boxes.

You're reaching back for C. Steenwyck in 1680, but there must be an alley named for him somewhere. Holland ran New York then and C. was elected on the Dutch vote. Which is something that ain't likely to happen while Tammany is editing the books.

You would never suspect that Tom Willcett was ahead of C. by five years, but Tom was just Mayor in 1665 long enough to pose for an oil painting. The budget of 1665 fails to indicate whether this painting was another Republican outrage or whether Tom thought his mug deserved a permanent wave.

We could even go back further into history than that. We could go back to the days when women wore skirts and before Alabama started hollering for Underwood. But we don't want to frighten the children.

Controlling Floods Here Of National Significance

...ting to the House Committee on Flood Control this district for flood relief, the Pittsburgh Flood ...tressed two points that have national significance. In this respect, the commission was better armed than if it had merely urged remedy for a local condition, although the justice of that claim is evident, since losses by flood here run into the millions.

A program for special treatment of the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers was proposed. This involves impounding of excess water in an extensive system of storage reservoirs. It was pointed out that this not only would relieve Pittsburgh of the periodical danger of high water, but would be an aid to river navigation through providing a means of keeping the rivers up to a navigable stage during periods when there is a natural fall.

The wisdom of such a course is evident. Pittsburgh is as much entitled to consideration in the matter of flood relief as any other locality and if we had no other "talking point" in this matter the merit of that alone should be sufficient. When the aid to navigation is considered, it seems there should be no answer except prompt congressional action.

Yet there is an additional national reason for giving heed to Pittsburgh. Flood control here would be an effective factor in flood control in the lower Mississippi valley. The Father of Waters would find its burden much lessened were the waters of the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela watersheds held in check in the manner proposed.

Our congressional delegation is behind this project, sponsored by the Flood Commission. Pittsburgh and surrounding territory in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia should get behind it with a firm purpose of pushing it to completion.

Federal Servants Worthy Of Increase in Pension

Classified civil service employes of the Federal government, especially those in the postal service, will have the sympathetic support of the public in their efforts to obtain an increase in the retirement stipend from $1,000 to $1,200 a year. The smaller figure represents a sum not sufficient to pay for proper living quarters, and other necessities of life.

Government clerks and other employes are within their rights in seeking support for the Dale-Lehlbach bill, introduced in both the House and Senate, which provides for optional retirement after 30 years of service with an annuity of $1,200 per annum. At present, retirement is at the age of 65 years, the annual pension of $1,000 being paid for by the employes through periodical contributions of 3.5 per cent of their salaries.

Our government is the richest in the world. Yet it pays employes salaries that are mere pittances compared to compensation for the same class of work given by private concerns. And from that small pay the employes must make provision for their pension.

These worthy servants are deserving of better treatment. They should receive their annuity without making any contributions other than that of service. And they should receive at least the increase in the annuity provided for in the Dale-Lehlbach bill.

Adding 5,000 to Church Is Benefit to All of Us

Five thousand new members of churches are the result of a week of evangelistic work throughout Allegheny county. In this special campaign 5,000 workers made visits to homes. January 22 has been designated as a general day for the 200 cooperating churches to receive the new members.

Bringing 5,000 persons into church affiliation in the short space of one week is something of which the workers can be proud. It also is a commentary on the effect of systematic work. There is no reason why the devil only should use "efficiency." Solicitation is a divine device—"Ask and ye shall receive."

We all know the great value of the church in our relationships to one another and to society. We all know its beneficial ministry has been strengthened by the addition of so many new members and that we have been benefited accordingly. So the 5,000 workers who asked in the name of the church and received deserve our thanks for having performed a good deed for all of us as well as for those whom they induced to become church members.

Cosmetic Insanity Cure Pleasant Remedy, Anyhow

The discovery in Chicago that ministration to beauty is of pathological effect in the treatment of deranged women is of interest here. Dixmont, Woodville and other hospitals having such patients in the future may employ beauty specialists in addition to medical men.

Regardless of a disposition to look lightly on the news report from Chicago, one is impressed by the enthusiasm of Dr. Alex. S. Hirshfield, alienist, who states that thoughts of beauty drive out morbid ones in women patients and that their mental condition is thereby benefited.

Numerous men are of the opinion that most women are "crazy" about beauty, hence they will feel that the new remedy is but an application of the old prescription of using the hair of a dog to cure its bite. But if it be effective, what matter? Cosmetics are cheap and plentiful. And lots more pleasant to the senses than many other remedies.

Measure of Civilization

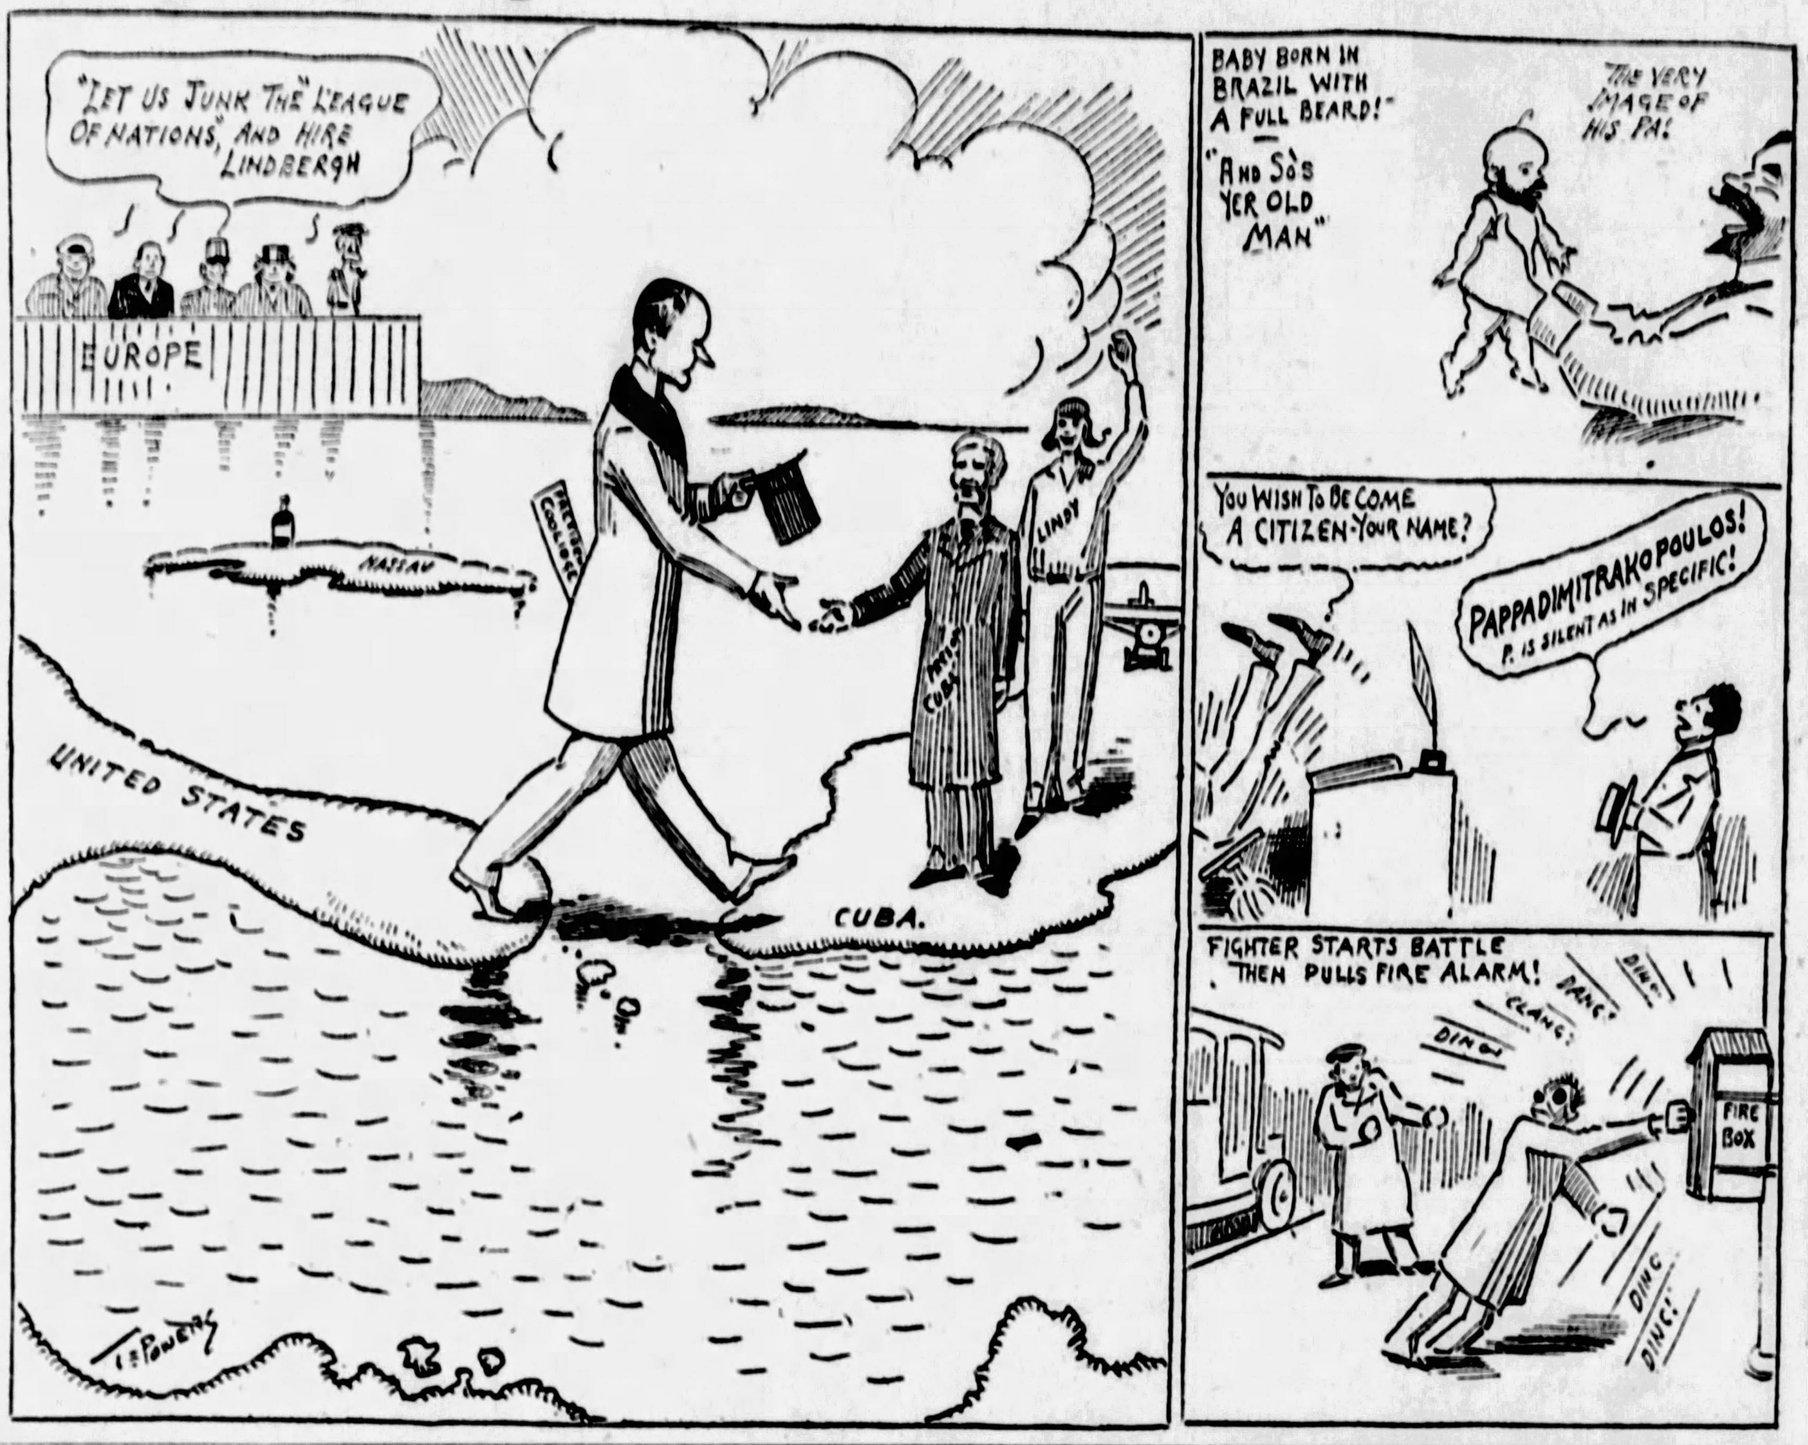
An old complaint was served at the Battle Creek Race Betterment conference by Prof. Edward A. Ross, Wisconsin sociologist.

He arraigned philanthropy because by sheltering and caring for weaklings it saved the unworthy from the results of their incompetency or misconduct.

Well, Sparta tried the other way and it didn't work as well as ours. We may some day find out how to avoid having weaklings, but until then civilization will continue to be measured by its kindness.

All of which Prof. Ross knows. Was he looking for a headline?

A Friendly Step -:- -:- By T. E. Powers



Argument Against War -:- -:- By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE is much talk of the probability of war. Lloyd George and H. G. Wells both say that the next war is not far off.

Deputy Cachin in the French Chamber recently was very pessimistic. He saw war clouds everywhere, even in America. The press reports say that he "pictured Uncle Sam gazing greedily at South American countries."

To all Americans this seems very much as though the deputy were talking through his hat. We know that the prospect of America conquering some South American republic and annexing it is most remote.

We have more territory now than we want and wouldn't take over another country if it were offered to us, especially a country peopled by folk whose mode of living is thoroughly foreign to our nation.

Perhaps rumors of war in Europe are about as baseless as those of Deputy Cachin concerning America. Mr. Briand declared that war between France and Italy is "unthinkable and impossible."

It is unthinkable and that for a very good reason.

Both nations are simply too poor to go to war. There are three requisites for war in this age, the three requisites being money and money and more money, of which commodity the two countries indicated as well as the rest of Europe are decidedly shy.

The main reason that induced the Kaiser to go to war was that he had plenty of money to spend in fireworks and enough to last him a good while, and the main reason why the war stopped was because he ran out of funds.

The only nation at present that is suitably prepared for war, and by that I mean having wealth enough, is the United States, and the war sentiment here is decidedly lacking.

We are a business nation and aside from all sentimental reasons we know that war does not pay. Men may not be cowards as far as risking their lives is concerned, but they are notoriously cowards when it comes to risking their money.

The best assurance that the world has that there will be no war for sometime to come is that the only nation ready for war doesn't want it. Its ambitions do not run in that direction.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Tales of the Traveler Light

If the light of the Pole Star takes forty years to reach us and if there was a telescope sufficiently powerful to show us life on that star (if any existed) and we could see a certain occurrence taking place there, would this mean that the occurrence had taken place forty years ago? I think it would, but my son thinks that because of the great power of the telescope it would show us things as they were transpiring at the moment of observation.—F. S.

THE telescope, marvellous as are its powers, can perform no such magic as that. Even if it could apparently bring the star so close to the eye that blades of grass were seen upon it, or bees humming among its flowers, yet the waves of light revealing those things would have left the star forty years before they were focussed in the eyepiece of the telescope. Otherwise stated, you would be seeing these things on the star as they occurred forty years ago.

The magnifying power of the telescope has no effect whatever on the real distance of the object looked at; it simply enlarges the visual angle at which the observer views the object, the result of which is that the object looks as if it were proportionately nearer.

You may illustrate this by studying a scene on the stage with an opera glass. The persons in the play appear larger and nearer through the glass than to the naked eye, but you know perfectly well that there has been no actual change of distance. If one of the actors should reverse the custom of the theater and throw a bouquet at you it would take the same time to reach you whether you were watching it through the glass or with the naked eye. So the telescope pointed at a star deals with light waves of the same age as those which simultaneously fall upon the retina of the naked-eye observer of that star.

But now that the subject is reopened I may as well try to settle the mind of another reader who declares that he is unable to absorb the statement of astronomers that if a star seven light years distant were suddenly extinguished we should not know it till seven years after. "I cannot believe," he says, "but that we should realize the phenomenon immediately if such a thing occurred."

There is here a confusion of thought concerning the word "extinguished." As the astronomer uses it, that word describes an event occurring at the star. But, since the observer is very far from the star, and since light requires time to travel through space, it is manifest that the observer cannot be aware of the extinguishment at the moment that it occurs, but only at the moment when the last light wave that left the star dies away on the retina of his eye.

Again we can get an illustration from a more familiar source. Sound consists of waves, but their speed is slight compared with that of the light waves. Sound waves travel in the air at about 1,100 feet in a second. Suppose, then, a whistle to be blowing at a distance of a mile from the hearer. Suddenly the whistle stops, but the listener, a mile away, continues to hear it for five seconds longer, i. e., until the last sound wave that left the whistle reaches his eardrum.

Once Overs
By J. J. MUNDY

Progress' Demands

WHAT has prosperity done for you?

Are you any more contented with life now than you were when you had less money?

Looking ahead, you see many more things, and higher positions you want.

And do you not find that each step ahead brings new demands?

As you become more prominent and more attention is directed to you, do you not find a curtailment of your liberties?

You cannot do the things you did while in more humble position, without bringing censure and reproach upon yourself.

Is what you have gained worth what it has, and will yet cost?

Perhaps in your climb you have dropped old friends who were tried and true.

Among the new friends you have never applied a test to establish their sincerity.

And isn't it a fact that in the loss of reliable friends you have severed yourself from those who were really necessary to your happiness?

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELIS

These Are My Joys

THESE are my joys, life's simple things
That lend the hours such shining wings;
Sometimes the spell bright April eaves
Of nets of singing willow-leaves,
Sometimes a meadow-lark's clear call,
A rose beyond a garden-wall.
In a child's shrill laughter rings
And all my spirit leaps and sings
With memories too sweet to pass,
Though life itself is but as grass.
A candle-flame blown back by wind,
In its brief glow I strangely find
New joy, because that gallant spark
Bravely fights life's forces dark.
Rooted in life's most simple things,
Unfailingly my gladness springs.

New York Day by Day
by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Broadway continues to "go Chinese." There are now more than 20 Chinese restaurants in the Broadway lobster belt lying between Herald Square and Columbus Circle. Paul Whiteman's Club, which was changed to The New Yorker, is now a standardized Chink cafe.

They all look alike, with their gaudy, vari-colored outside electric signs and shadowy, dim-lit interiors. Yet in a few short years they have managed to chase restaurants of prominence off the street. Only quick-lunch places and chop houses seem to survive.

The famous old Palais Royal "went Chinese" several years ago. It was followed by the equally famous Churchill's, conducted by the ex-police captain, Jim Churchill. In the majority of these there is no cover charge. If there is one, it is slight.

Both Chinese and American food are served. Most all are owned and operated by a Chinese syndicate. The waiters are stockholders and in this way patrons are given a courteous service not often achieved by many other restaurants.

Food prices are moderate and within reach of the average purse. No liquor is sold, although patrons may bring their own without interference, so long as they conduct themselves properly. Chinese cafes will not permit boisterous manners.

They hire the best orchestras and thus patrons may have a good dinner and dance to elegant music all evening for $2 per person, whereas just the privilege of sitting down in the average supper club costs often a dollar or so more than that.

Last season about this time I wrote night clubs were picking at the coverlets and this season might be their last. There came many hooting letters and a few jeering newspaper paragraphs. Yet they continue to die off like flies. And the Chinese restaurants have had something to do with their decline.

A single block in the 40's, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, is known as Speakeasy Row. Here 29 saloons dispense "giggle fluid." Most of them are in sedate brown-fronted dwellings and a few are disguised as musty antique stores.

One of New York's little mysteries is why men who wear monocles usually sit at a cafe table alone. Somehow they seem to resemble a frightened screech owl.

A morning rider in Central Park is a man who drags himself from a limousine on crutches to the mounting block of the bridle path, and is then lifted on a spirited horse. He is an expert rider.

Young Jed Harris, a few years ago a press agent for second rate road shows, stands out as Broadway's most conspicuous theatrical producer. He is a quick, nervous fellow who received the customary Broadway "laugh" producing his first play. That was "Broadway." His second hit was "Coquette." His income is now estimated to be around $20,000 a week. He is a youthful and fretting conquistador whose eyes are adame with enthusiasm. He has a scorning contempt for the Broadway "mob" who fawn over the latest arrival.

Several youthful producers in the past few years have flashed across the theatrical horizon with a single hit—and were seen no more. But some of them are still heard.

In a fine apartment building on Park avenue, the night telephone girl revealed she had standing orders to call one of the wealthiest men in New York at 3 o'clock every morning. He arises, takes a half hour walk and goes back to bed to sleep until 10 o'clock.

Two plays sneering at Hollywood failed in a week. Hollywood, it seems has been sneered at by experts and the public is a trifle fed up. After all Hollywood has its points. But come to think of it, what are they?

Tales That Are Told

His Own Fault

LITTLE LESLIE went to church and sat just underneath the pulpit. The clergyman's text happened to be: "I shall come down and dwell amongst you."

He had repeated these words several times when, without the slightest warning, the pulpit suddenly collapsed.

The clergyman's first thought was for Leslie, and he speedily rescued him from the wreckage, remarking sympathetically:

"I am sorry, I hope you are not hurt."

"It can't be helped," replied Leslie. "You warned me often enough."

Changing the Bear

SHE was visiting the Zoo and gathering as much information about the animals as possible in one short afternoon.

Eventually she came to the house where the bears were quartered.

"Are these animals carnivorous?" she asked the keeper, who was keeping a watchful eye upon all the small boys in the vicinity.

The keeper scratched his head and then he smiled brightly.

"They was, ma'am," he answered. "But they're all right since we washed 'em in carbolic."
